Panorama of Pageant and Bowl—The tableau is an allegory of the passing of the arts and sciences from the old world, across the Atlantic, to the new, to lay their offerings at the feet of the infant college, Yale. Photograph by Akers, © Pach Photo News, Inc.

President George Washington visiting New Haven in 1787. The town folk and students and faculty of Yale greeted the hero of the day. © American Press Association.

John W. Overton, famous cross-country runner, took the character of an Indian messenger who brought to New Haven news of the arrival of the Colonists. © American Press Association.

Captain Benedict Arnold and the Governor's Foot Guard leaving New Haven to join the American forces after the battle of Lexington. © American Press Association.