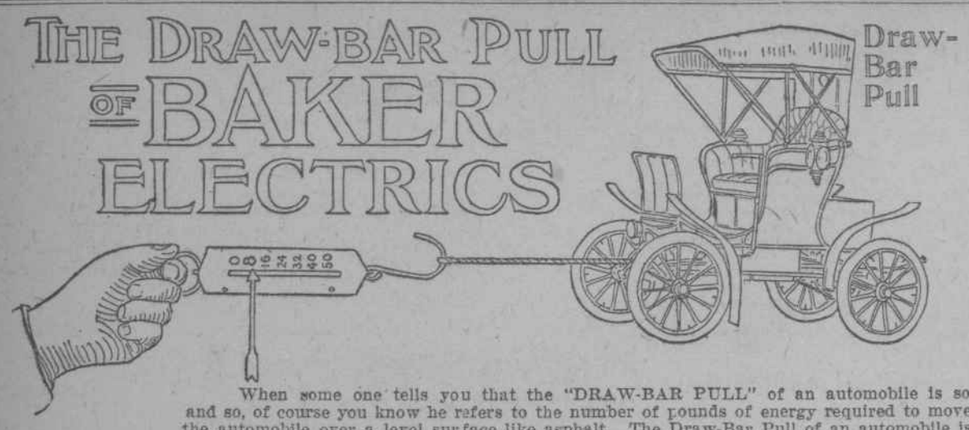
THE DRAW-BAR PULL OF BAKER ELECTRICS



When some one tells you that the "DRAW-BAR PULL" of an automobile is so and so, of course you know he refers to the number of pounds of energy required to move the automobile over a level surface like asphalt. The Draw-Bar Pull of an automobile is the real test of efficiency; in other words, shows how easily it runs. The Draw-Bar Pull of BAKER ELECTRICS is one-half that shown by actual tests of other automobiles. That is why the BAKER STANHOPE is equipped with only a twelve-cell battery while others of similar type require batteries of twenty-four or more cells, yet give no better service in any particular. Why buy an electric with a large battery equipment when half the battery will do the work equally as well? Remember—the more battery the greater expense, the fewer the batteries the lower the cost to maintain, the less care the smaller expense in the eventual replacement of battery plates.

The greater the mechanical energy required to operate a motor car, the greater weight required, and this means less satisfactory service, more wear and tear. The workmanship in BAKER ELECTRICS is the finest; the materials the best that money can buy. Every working part moves on a ball-bearing. This insures utmost efficiency with the least possible motor strain. It insures satisfactory service at the lowest possible maintenance cost and practically no expense for repairs.

Every BAKER vehicle exhibits this same low "Draw-Bar Pull," and the same high rate efficiency.

All BAKERS are superbly finished in the finest style of the carriage maker's art and the upholstery is the choicest. These are a few of the reasons that have prompted BAKER owners to call them "THE ARISTOCRATS OF MOTORDOM."

Hear the "Other Fellow"

The best thing we can say about a REO car is what the other fellow says after he has used it.

"I have driven my REO some 2,000 miles," says Mr. R. H. Anderson, of Bordentown, N. J. "Total cost of repairs to date, 50 cents, 25 cents of which was for repairing a broken iron on mud guard and 25 cents for small patch on shoe where it got snagged. To sum the whole thing up, I think my REO is all that the maker claims for it."

REO

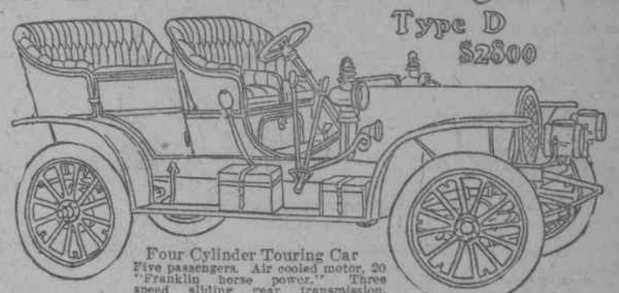
FRANKLIN



Four Cylinder Touring Car
Five passengers. Air cooled motor, 20 "Franklin horse power." Three speed sliding gear transmission. Shaft drive. Disc clutch. Force feed oiler on dash. 100-inch wheel base. 1,800 pounds. 45 miles per hour. Full head and tail light equipment. $2,800. F. O. B. Syracuse.

Ride in this car first and look at the rating afterward

You will find it doing fifty per cent more work than other cars of its rating. And if you look into the perfect cooling of the Franklin motor with its auxiliary exhaust, and examine the light, strong, resilient construction which allows this power to do its full work, you can easily understand the reasons for this difference.
