William Raine's Edition.

THE BUTTERFLY'S BALL.

AND THE

GRASSHOPPER'S FEAST.

EMBELLISHED WITH EIGHT COLORED ENGRAVINGS.

BALTIMORE:
PRINTED & PUBLISHED BY Wm. RAINE,
No. 74, Baltimore Street.

William Raine's Edition.

THE BUTTERFLY'S BALL AND Grasshopper's Feast.

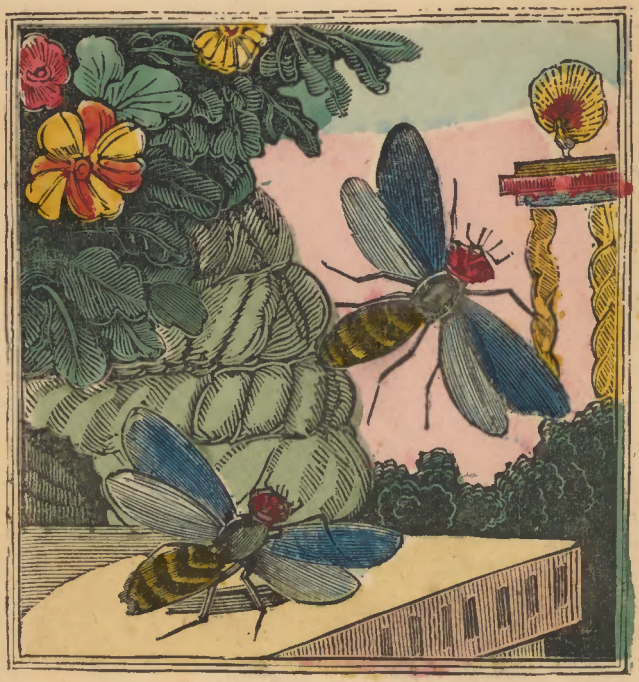
The Emperor of Morocco gave a Grand Gala ;
It was, I am told, on Midsummer Day,
Quite close to his side was the young Chinese queen,
Two handsomer Butterfly's never were seen.

The Blue-bottle Fly as a herald went round,
The insects crept out as they heard the gay sound
Of his clarion, inviting them unto the ball,
Which was to take place close to Peacock's Hall.

Love L Palmer

East Hebron

Connecticut



Such a throng of gay revellers before ne'er was seen,
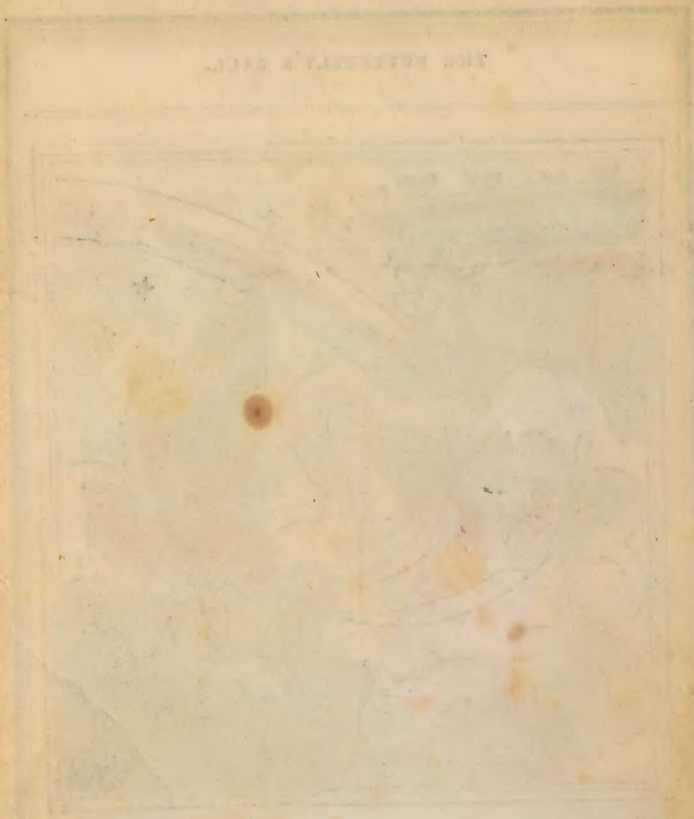
Of Moths and Gnats, with Grasshoppers green,
The Bees left their hive, and did quickly repair,
With large bags of honey to add to the fare.

The Cricket came next, a chirping along,
But no one but herself was pleased with the song:
She rode on a Frog, who was a kind fellow,
And she had a small Dock Leaf, for an umbrella.



The Butterfly's subjects came in grand procession,
The scene it was pleasing beyond all expression,
A drawing along, ('tis true I declare,)
Their favorite Prince in a car through the air.

A little Tom Tit was so kind to make tea,
And handed it round to the gay company,
On a small wooden tray, that he placed on his head,
And the Cups and the Saucers of Acorns were made.

PZ6
B894
1803
Rare Bk
Coll.

The Queen and the Emperor led off the dance,
Which they did with much skill---they had learned it in France;
The Frog he stood up, and play'd on the fiddle,
While some little Cockchafers blithe sung
"Diddle diddle."

40595
9M473

Alas! they unprudently staid till 'twas dark;
They heard the owls hoot and the surly dog bark;
Mr. Frog lost his way, but had the good luck
To make his escape from the gripe of a Duck.
The Butterfly's lay until the next morning,
But rov'd 'mongst the flowers just at the day's dawning:
Then cards of enquiry to their late guests they sent,
By a Beetle in boots, who speedily went.

WILLIAM KAINE,

Printer and Publisher,

No. 74 BALTIMORE STREET,

BALTIMORE,

Has entered extensively into the publication of

JUVENILE BOOKS.

His facilities for manufacturing Works of this Class, enable him to furnish them at lower prices than any other Establishment in the United States.

NEW COLOURED BOOKS.

New Nursery Book, or, Rhymes for children.
Henry Adair, or, the Youthful Laborer.
Little Tales for Little Folks.
The Months and Seasons, or a Picture of the Year.
First Steps on the Ladder of Learning.
The Picturesque Gift for Children.
The Adventures of Little Red Riding Hood.
The Peahen at Home, or the Swan's Bridal Day.
The Butterfly's Ball, and Grasshopper's Feast.
The Adventures of Little Dame Crump.
Child's First Book.
The Life and Death of Poor Cock Robin.
Child's Own Scrap Book.
My Father.
My Mother.
My Brother.
My Sister.
My Aunt Lucy's Gift.
My Cousin.
Peter Prim's Short Stories for good children.
Mother Goose's Amusing little scraps for children.
The Comical Adventures of the Little Woman.
Dame Wiggins, of Lee, and her Seven cats.
Adventures of Johnny Newcome in the Navy.
The Adventures of Paul Pry, in London.
The History of Wittington and his Cat.
Cinderella, or the Little Glass Slipper.
Adventures of Goody Two Shoes.
The New London Cries.
Adventures of Mother Hubbard.
Puss in Boots.
Dame Trot and her Comical Cat.
Honest Tommy.
Gallery of Birds.
Gallery of Beasts.
Child's Play Book.
The Babes in the Woods.
The House Jack Built.

JUVENILE PRIMER, with 34 col'd Engravings.
PICTURE GALLERY, 144 sheets—all different.