

This photograph, taken aboard one of the first American transports sailing for France, has just been released by the censor. At that time Germany was still loudly boasting that we couldn't get an army over there in time to make any difference. To-day she is singing another tune. International.

Italian cavalry moving on toward the front, near the Montello. These horsemen have been particularly successful in rounding up Austrian prisoners.

Central News