

I firmly agree with Static Control that the DMCA should not apply to ink/toner cartridges. The intent of the DMCA was to protect against methods of bypassing copyright controls, not to create a monopoly for a printer manufacturer. The idea that Lexmark wants the DMCA to apply in this case is ludicrous because SCC is not stealing. They are providing a competitive product to end users, thus promoting a free marketplace and providing competition in prices/performance.

Please support SSC's petition. In the meantime I will not be buying Lexmark products in protest.

Sincerely,
Drew Taylor
