

I will make this a very short and simple letter. To say we can not unlock our devices, gaming systems, personal computing systems, and smartphones is like saying well yes I will sell you this Ford by if you put a Chevy engine in it later down the road i will sue you! We bought and paid for these devices and they are ours to do with as we please. I am a IT professional and i'm in college for programming and i know first hand how limited so many devices are software wise, this is why so many people "jail break" devices. We have the right to install Windows or Linux or Mac software on our pc's we should have the same right with all devices that have a user interface. These are our devices we bought and paid for them, don't tell us we can't modify them. It's our property!

Thank you
Chad Watterson

