

Hello, my name is Kevin Cianfarini, and I am a technology enthusiast as well as a soon to be developer. It has come to my concern that jailbreaking could very possibly become illegal again, and that is not what many want. While i may be focused on the tablet,smartphone part of it, i believe that if the user buys the device, they should have full control over their device by being able to modify the software given to them. Furthermore, I do not support piracy in any way and while it may be very remnant in the jailbreaking community as well as some software platforms in general, i do believe that this does not compromise as a reason jailbreaking should be outlawed. I am a jailbreaker, and i know first hand that the modification of software can bring the ease of use to the user in their own personal way, and really get the best out of their device.

It has also become a huge community in a whole, for example, the iPhone, iPod, iPad statistics show that about 10% of people jailbreak their iOS for full customization according to their own personal preference.

I do believe that it is in the best of your interest to agree with the people on this, that they are our devices and we should have full control over them.