

Michael Ricchino

Comment number(s) of proposed classes of works:: 3,4,5

As a student, developer, and hardware enthusiast I firmly believe that once I buy something it is mine to do with whatever I wish. This is true for every other commercially sold product be it cars, computers, food, why should phones, game consoles, and tablet computers be any different? Once I pay the manufacturer for the goods, I should have the right to use them how they best suite me, not restricted by their views or ideals for how it should be used.