

Currently devices manufactures as well as service providers install many applications that take up space, but add no value to the device. Many of these apps cannot be uninstalled to free up valueable space without "jailbreaking" the device. I submit that since I paid for and clearly own this device. I should be able do anything with I choose including, jailbreaking or using it as a paperweight provided the intended us is legal and does not violate copyright law or infringe on anothers existing copywrite.
