

To whom it may concern,

I am writing to you with my concerns about the ruling from the U.S. Copyright Office on jailbreaking.

I am in favor of renewing the ruling for an indefinite period as well as adding Tablets, Game consoles, and “other” personal computing devices to the list of electronics that are legal to jailbreak. The process of jailbreaking can increase the security of an electronic device as well as increase it’s functional value to an individual.

Again, please rule in favor to continue to allow legal jailbreaking of electronic devices as well as adding tablets, game consoles, and other personal computing devices to the list.

Thanks for your time!

Sincerely,
Thomas O’Connor
