

I work on an Army base in the middle east and at night it is very dark.

Often times for my job I have walk outside the trailer, and there's rocks, scorpions, Spiny-Tailed Lizards, wild dogs etc to look out for outside.

I use my iPhone's camera light to see so I don't get injured. Unfortunately Apple makes it difficult to activate the videocamera's light quickly. Burying it within menus.

I jailbreak my phone specifically so that I can set a button to immediately turn on the "flashlight" on my camera when I need it.

Please do NOT make it against the law for me to be safe while supporting the U.S. Army's troops.
