Dear Bob,

I'm your friend. I was your friend before I was "director" of the Poetry Project, before I knew anything about it except to teach my work shop.*

We work at the Poetry Project, not personally ambitiously (I hope) to further this nearly political cause, we believe in poetry. I didnt take this job for the money (the way Ron presented it to me). I took it because it's more important to me to help run the Poetry Project than to teach, etc. Also it was a chance for me + Lewis to live on the lower East Side among all our friends - cause without a job we would've moved to Bklyn + then Lewis would've been unhappy again, like he was in Lenox.

I guess it's ok that there's alot of tension among all the people who work together at the Poetry Project, since we're all poets but I must admit when something (Even a trivial thing) happens, I tend to put myself first + heartily wish to be treated like a friend (I dont like to Ever be treated like a person in a state or position of authority because first of all I dont believe in it + secondly, though I decided I would - as in bylaws - be responsible for all that goes on at P. Project, as I'm supposed to be, still I dont think I'd have assumed that task if I didnt know I'd be working with friends.).

* plus doing secretarial work for Anne.

I guess maybe that is an Exacerbating request - to ask to be treated as a friend, but I dont think the formality of our administrative tasks should so overwhelm us that the pleasure's not in it, just as when one is dealing with all the formal Expectations of parenthood - + to do them right - still one is a person on one's own (still!!) + can have some private pleasures + having them is a good thing (for ALL).

I dont like rules - in my life + in my writing I have always tried to at least see what it was like

+ also, there's the beauty of the situation.

to flout them, thus perhaps my /Evidency at the smoking & drinking that takes place, willy-nilly in Parish Hall. The practical point is to prevent, in one's vigilance, anything dangerous from happening. And surely to be as alert as one is to the dangers of love, which are, too, horrendous. (I hope it's the same).

I would guess I am not suited to my job because, within it, as you can see, I still want people to love me, as if it were the same as writing poetry. Maybe Ted is right & I shouldn't be the person doing this. It's true I'm not lacking for things to do. & if it begins to seem outright inappropriate & impossible, it won't be hard for me to cede to another.

But as it stands, I feel devoted to my task, if I can do it.
Which means if we all can do it, obviously, since it's no longer autocracy. I'm sensitive too, silly to say, & as a friend I'm begging you to know that, thus this silly letter, with all its pleading to you to be a friend & sillily help me.

Blackburn tapes?

Maybe we should ask Terry if he wants the break to be before or after he reads

I think they meant it to be before Terry.

Shall I now?

or 20 mins?

I will, after this poem - ? yes?

Michael McClure's work has a chilling inhumanity, or, distance, or, "sense" of superiority; Even when he says "I am a mammal patriot & love all life," he seems to be (feeling) above it (all).

Why?

He is an ethno-astronaut, & is not satisfied with his mammalian nature. He is a star shooter, not a star-gazer. It is a play of togetherness to get Or to kick out/up. He is Up, Uh I think.

Yet he is sterile (due to waspishness? just "manners" - a "hoax"?) - He seems (& has always seemed to me) to be preaching. Strange that it is he who learned to growl like an animal.

No. He learned to write a growl. I wish he'd growl a few.

He did growl Chaucer + I think J. Giorno will probably love that.

there will be a "little" break after M.

He is stirile though, he is a famous poet but he is not a great poet, it's because of his psychology (is my intuition)

(Wait! he's getting better!)

He is good to present a peculiar California spaced-ness, rooted in cell structure, but there is no research, + in the genes there is no real knowledge surface. It is a cataloging, but not evocative ~~and like~~ great poems.

So you agree? Yes. — I'm surprised

(Is he a great playwright?)

No, but playful + necessary.

His rohrshach (?) gives much room for performers like Tyler Mead to loop around (space) + often has a very heavy politico edge that gives a Meaning.

I couldn't find a poem in Sept. Blackberries to quote. I love Ghost Tantras, & do think it the "boiling over of the Beats."

└ me too!

It would be (is) interesting to write all this stuff down, like, Valery seems to be here out of a kind of biological (sticking) nearness to Poetry Project (a macho sense) ~~do you remember~~

Yes, and I am neutral ~~to~~ viz. PP that causes that. Necessary, educative, & "Keeping community," I guess. But I buy the story

Dear Bernadette,
This is a big place & we are big. We are so non-elite as to even allow the elite to appear. This is always a mistake. Oh Man. we made the same mistake w/ "Int'l Flavour." We do it tonight. But it will be many half-full-moons before GM Motors gatflies buzzes & nettles & Project staff into a next reading. It can only be "directed" so much. Wanna drink? love, B. PS- Hannah now has something to complain about. PPS- CD Wright like Leslie Ullman!

Thanks, B, that's an encouraging speech but I can barely stand to stay in the room & I feel as if the part of myself from which my breath originates is sort of clipped in half & I hate

Poetry / Glamour = cynicism

& I am thoroughly ashamed to have permitted this to happen in the world (should've known better) (Gerard would've been "o.k." with somebody else) (acceptable, obviously not.... (filler)

Bill & Hannah have it missed already yeh.

Here come the ~~Est~~ excitement

What color is superior stain?

Do I still get to go party?

Yes, as sociology study (you're young yet)

it's a rather surfacy color, you can't exactly judge what it's going to be, you think it'll be the color of the floor itself, but then it turns out to be quite different, rather alarming.

Also, Gerard is "punishing" the "Church" now-

I must admit I never, in all my years, thought it was this bad.

You should leave but you will stay. No, it's better this way, GM/KU. This way we know for sure. This way, not that he'll learn better but we do. This way nobody "else" has to suffer in GM's posture. & that his "friends" have deserted him — I have nothing to say.

Two narcissists! It's hateful.
I wont leave Exactly, yet I have left. (Essay to be written on

How did you like Lyra & Lewis' morning! Poor Marie! But see, this must go back years for you. S, N, & S: the Rootless Ruthless Rutters!

In ALL those (old) days, Gerard was not THIS. Then, he could've pulled it off. Now he is like the born-again Bob Dylan. (my prejudice, perhaps). Thus, his new friends, are they at Dakota
