

TONS OF DYNAMITE SHIPPED TO CUBA.

Captain O'Brien Leaves Philadelphia with the Biggest Cargo Yet Sent.

High Explosives, Heavy Guns, Rifles and Machetes in a Swift Vessel.

Careful Preparations Made to Deliver the Munitions into the Hands of the Patriots.

STEAMSHIP PROBABLY THE HOWARD.

Several Boats Loaded with False Cargoes Deceive Spanish Spies, and the Real Goods Are Taken Aboard at Sea.

A large steamship left Philadelphia nine days ago, loaded with the biggest cargo of munitions of war yet dispatched to the insurgents...

The preparations were begun as long ago as last April, when Captain O'Brien, in whom the Cuban leaders have absolute confidence...

The cargo entrusted to Captain O'Brien consisted of 50,000 pounds of stick dynamite, a dozen field guns of heavy calibre...

Captain O'Brien has made elaborate preparations for the landing of his cargo. He is the originator of a method for transferring packages at sea by means of a wire from the mast of one vessel to that of another.

The captain was as shrewd in escaping the eyes of the Spanish spies with this last expedition as he has been with others. Closely watched by detectives in the Spanish employ and by Government officers...

The cargo was loaded in a legal manner, so far as the United States is concerned, and the consignment is regular. It is said the amount of dynamite taken is the largest ever shipped out of this country since Captain O'Brien himself carried his famous consignment of dynamite to Haiti for General Hippolyte in the schooner Nacht Rambler.

Captain O'Brien is known as a first-class sailor and a resourceful man. His friends are confident he will land his cargo.

PREPARED TO QUIT THE SHIP. Fram's Crew Wanted to Abandon Her After Nansen Had Left.

Christiania, Aug. 21.—The Norgenblad says that upon one occasion, after Dr. Nansen left the Fram embedded in the ice, in March, 1895, the crew of the vessel loaded sledges with provisions and prepared to leave the ship.

Upon the occasion of the Fram's calling at Dane's Island, Spitzbergen, August 14, M. Andrew, the Swedish explorer, told Captain Sverdrup that the season was too far advanced to justify a balloon ascension, and that it was his intention to leave Spitzbergen August 20.

The Fram arrived at Tromsø last evening.

American's prehistoric man. A scientific party claims to have tracked him down at last. Don't miss the first picture made of him. In to-morrow's great Sunday Journal.

Then She Posed as a Living Picture and Rode a Bicycle—Alderman Oltrogge the Star Witness at the Trial—Boarding House Mistress's Testimony.

Mrs. Eliza Jane Morgan abandoned her husband, Frederick Morgan, the artist, who lives in Clarkson street, Brooklyn, last January.

The artist confided his troubles to Alderman John F. Oltrogge and asked him to assist him in getting evidence.

The case was tried before Justice W. W. Goodrich, in the Supreme Court, yesterday, and the Alderman was the star witness.

Mary Whelan, who is employed at Mr. Morgan's home, testified that she saw Mrs. Morgan the day she left home.

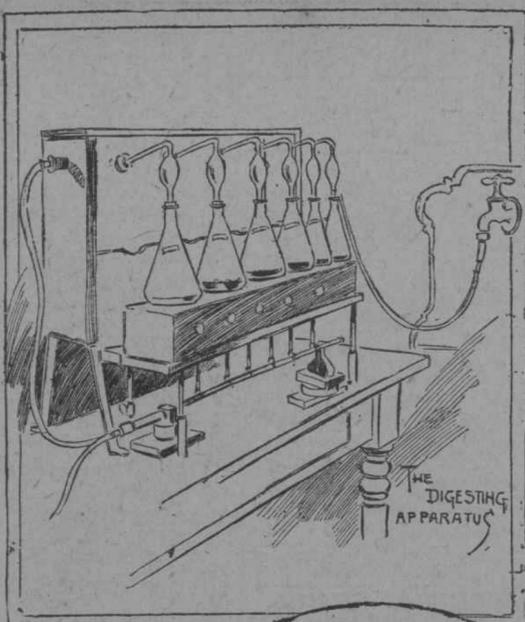

Mrs. Jennie Applegate, of No. 141 Lawrence street, testified that she saw Mrs. Morgan the day she left home.

Some of the older authorities thought it was a boiling of the brain, which, as a result, causes a great deal of water. Another effect is the depression which produces collapse and resembles symptoms resulting from excessive cold.

Justice Goodrich postponed the hearing to enable Morgan to obtain additional testimony.

To Perform Marvels With Fire. Manhattan Beach, in the many years of its existence, has had many notable fireworks displays, but never such an exhibition as that prepared to celebrate the seventeenth annual festival of the event this evening in Pain's Open Air Theatre.

There will be hanging gardens and floating beams, diamond dust, Niagara Falls in gold and silver fire, and the lake in front of the stage will be turned into a sea of fire.

Finding the Cause of Sunstroke. In discovering the real cause of sunstroke the State Pathological Institute and hospital doctors conducted a series of delicate experiments.

FOUGHT THE CONSTABLES. Connecticut Militia Resent Interference of Country Officers—Reception to General Miles.

Niantic, Conn., Aug. 21.—The militia and town authorities had a row at the railway station here to-day. The militiamen are in camp here, and to-day they were visited by General N. A. Miles.

WEDDED IN ENGLAND, CAME TO THIS COUNTRY AND LIVED HAPPY TOGETHER FOR YEARS.

FINALLY HER LOVE GREW COLD. Then She Posed as a Living Picture and Rode a Bicycle—Alderman Oltrogge the Star Witness at the Trial—Boarding House Mistress's Testimony.

Mrs. Eliza Jane Morgan abandoned her husband, Frederick Morgan, the artist, who lives in Clarkson street, Brooklyn, last January.

The artist confided his troubles to Alderman John F. Oltrogge and asked him to assist him in getting evidence.

The case was tried before Justice W. W. Goodrich, in the Supreme Court, yesterday, and the Alderman was the star witness.

Mary Whelan, who is employed at Mr. Morgan's home, testified that she saw Mrs. Morgan the day she left home.

Mrs. Jennie Applegate, of No. 141 Lawrence street, testified that she saw Mrs. Morgan the day she left home.

Some of the older authorities thought it was a boiling of the brain, which, as a result, causes a great deal of water.

Justice Goodrich postponed the hearing to enable Morgan to obtain additional testimony.

To Perform Marvels With Fire. Manhattan Beach, in the many years of its existence, has had many notable fireworks displays, but never such an exhibition as that prepared to celebrate the seventeenth annual festival of the event this evening in Pain's Open Air Theatre.

There will be hanging gardens and floating beams, diamond dust, Niagara Falls in gold and silver fire, and the lake in front of the stage will be turned into a sea of fire.

THEORY OF SUNSTROKE.

Leading Doctors Say That the Discovery May Result in Benefit to Mankind.

But the Investigations Are Not Ended, for Much More is to Be Learned.

WORTHY OF CAREFUL CONSIDERATION. Opinions of Drs. A. H. Little, Benedict and McLeod—'Idea Welcomed as a Step in the Right Direction.'

The discovery by Dr. Ira T. Van Gleson, Director of the State Pathological Institute, exclusively announced in the Journal yesterday, that sunstroke is not due to the sun's rays, as has been believed, but to a poison created by armetistic conditions...

INNOCULATING A RABBIT IN THE LABORATORY.

HYPODERMIC SYRINGE USED FOR INNOCULATING ANIMALS.

MARRIED HIS MODEL, NOW SEEKS DIVORCE. Artist Morgan Tells How His Young Wife Deserted Him for Another.

WEDDED IN ENGLAND, CAME TO THIS COUNTRY AND LIVED HAPPY TOGETHER FOR YEARS.

FINALLY HER LOVE GREW COLD. Then She Posed as a Living Picture and Rode a Bicycle—Alderman Oltrogge the Star Witness at the Trial—Boarding House Mistress's Testimony.

Mrs. Eliza Jane Morgan abandoned her husband, Frederick Morgan, the artist, who lives in Clarkson street, Brooklyn, last January.

The artist confided his troubles to Alderman John F. Oltrogge and asked him to assist him in getting evidence.

The case was tried before Justice W. W. Goodrich, in the Supreme Court, yesterday, and the Alderman was the star witness.

Mary Whelan, who is employed at Mr. Morgan's home, testified that she saw Mrs. Morgan the day she left home.

Mrs. Jennie Applegate, of No. 141 Lawrence street, testified that she saw Mrs. Morgan the day she left home.

Some of the older authorities thought it was a boiling of the brain, which, as a result, causes a great deal of water.

Justice Goodrich postponed the hearing to enable Morgan to obtain additional testimony.

To Perform Marvels With Fire. Manhattan Beach, in the many years of its existence, has had many notable fireworks displays, but never such an exhibition as that prepared to celebrate the seventeenth annual festival of the event this evening in Pain's Open Air Theatre.

There will be hanging gardens and floating beams, diamond dust, Niagara Falls in gold and silver fire, and the lake in front of the stage will be turned into a sea of fire.

The discovery by Dr. Ira T. Van Gleson, Director of the State Pathological Institute, exclusively announced in the Journal yesterday, that sunstroke is not due to the sun's rays, as has been believed, but to a poison created by armetistic conditions...

The police have been looking for "Larry" Lutterer, otherwise "Young Irish," for many months. Within a year half a dozen lads of tender years, brought into the downtown police courts on charges of pocket picking and petty larceny, have confessed that they were taught their light-fingered art and encouraged in it by "Larry" Lutterer.

Lawrence Connelly, a newsboy, ten years old, living at No. 29 Washington street, was taken to the Centre Street Police Court two weeks ago Sunday by a policeman of the Old Slip squad charged with having stolen a $10 bill from the pocket of Arthur A. Townsend, of Clifton, S. I.

What a suspicious Lutterer, who, for five or six years, has sold newspapers in the neighborhood of the Battery. His suspicions were confirmed later in the day, when two of the crew of the fireboat New Yorker, reported that they had seen Lutterer at their home, near the Aquarium, about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, come out from the shrubbery in that part of the park, counting some money.

TAUGHT BY A MOUTH TO PICK POCKETS.

Open Air School of Crime Loses by Arrest of the Alleged Preceptor.

Small Boys Declare Lutterer Instructed Them by Example in the Art of Theft.

METHODS ORIGINAL AND INGENUOUS. To a Victim, in One Instance, is Handed a Paper by a Supposed Newsboy, Who at the Same Time Robs Him.

Lawrence Lutterer, who is called by the police the boy Fagin of Battery Park, is at last in their hands, with a case against him which they declare will bring to a sudden and inglorious close a career of crime that has utilized most of the working hours of the more recent of his seventeen years.

Caught at Last. Park policeman Whalen captured "Larry" in Battery Park Thursday night at 10 o'clock.

Whalen searched the shrubbery twice, and on Monday found the prayer book, with Conway's name written on the fly-leaf. Thursday night he saw the boy bowing his papers and arrested him.

In the Centre Street Police Court yesterday Lutterer declined to say anything, except that he was not guilty. He was remanded for examination this morning.

In the Tombs yesterday afternoon the boy never could hold his tongue when I was asked, "said he, 'because I hadn't done nothing.' I don't know nothing about this fellow Conway, his money, nor his prayers."

Lutterer is small for his age, but bright. Two of Lutterer's pals, lads named Grogan and Connelly, were arrested with him. The leader of the younger boys is a lad of ten, known as "Little Irish."

The methods of pocket-picking taught by "Larry" Lutterer to his youthful pupils, as described by the Connelly boy, the Gerry agents, are ingenious. There are two distinct methods. The one practiced by young Connelly on Arthur Townsend is the more dangerous.

The boy pocket-picked the seller, or pretending to sell, papers. "Run along, besides his intended victim, when I thrust up a paper into his face, as if to attract his attention, crying the addition or the price of the paper."

The pupils have a second method which, in its working out, utilized the very infants of the district. The lads, like all ten-year-olds, are in the habit of playing with toy wagons, made of soap boxes and upon four wheels.

How Little Ones Help. These wagons are sufficiently embarrassing to sedate pedestrians when their youthful owners are entirely innocent of any evil intention.

The other boys then rush out, and while reproaching the younger lads and pretending to assist the discomfited person, divest him of anything of value that his pockets may contain.

"Larry" Lutterer's father claims to be an honest working man. Of his two brothers one, who is in the Catholic Church, is a preceptor for a daring bit of sneak thievery.

Mayor Wurster Will Receive LL. It has been practically decided that Li Hung Chang, the Celestial Viceroy, will visit Brooklyn September 2.

Justice Gaynor Returns Sept. 12. Justice William J. Gaynor will return from Europe about September 12. He will sail from Liverpool on September 5.

A page of beauties that men are breaking their hearts for. In to-morrow's great Sunday Journal.

CARBOY BAD AS COWBOY.

It "Holds Up" All Pedestrians on a Sixth Avenue Block and Compels Them to Shed Many Tears.

Everybody on the west side of Sixth avenue, between Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth streets, yesterday, fell into tears at about the hour of noon.

A carboy of ammonia, which two men were taking from a truck into the paint store of Joseph Dillon & Sons, had fallen from the inclined plane on which it was being made to slide.

Noon is the hour of gossip on that polyglot block. Sordid ways come out of his printing shop with a copy of the Journal a carefully folded, like a map, under his arm; Franchini appears, smiling at the latest anecdote told by his fastidious guests at breakfast, and Mazzetti marches forth briskly smoking like a train.

The two men who were in charge of it seemed to think otherwise. When it fell they ran as if an avalanche was after them.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

SPEAKER T. B. REED BECOMES A REFEREE.

Twenty-eight Insurance Companies Name Him as Their Arbitrator.

Succeeds the Late William E. Russell to a Post of Little Work and High Salary.

Refused to Go to Germany in the Same Interest as He Wants to Help McKinley.

THOUGHT OF LEAVING POLITICS. Disgusted After St. Louis, He Proposed Opening a Law Office in New York, but Delayed to Avoid Accusations of Sulking.

Thomas B. Reed has just been appointed successor to the late William E. Russell, former Governor of Massachusetts, as referee for twenty-eight of the principal life insurance companies of this country.

The position carries with it a handsome salary—better than that which Mr. Reed receives as Speaker of the House of Representatives, and there is little for the referee to do.

If all the service which Mr. Reed in his new position will be called upon to perform in the course of a year was called for at one time, he could clean it up within a week.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

When Mr. Reed was here shortly after the St. Louis Convention had crushed his Presidential hopes he thought very seriously of retiring from political life and coming to New York to establish a law practice.

Captain John O'Brien, who is taking dynamite to Cuba.

Having eluded Spanish spies, a swift steamer under his command has sailed from Philadelphia. Aboard is the biggest cargo of dynamite yet sent to the insurgents, as well as arms and medical supplies.

Artist Morgan tells how his young wife deserted him for another.

Widowed in England, came to this country and lived happily together for years.

Finally her love grew cold.

Then she posed as a living picture and rode a bicycle.

Strikers force girls out.

Only the driver was hurt.

Chloroform for a tiger.

Morphine habit cured.

Expressmen confident.

Two women with a knife.