

SAY THE COLONEL IS "MATRIMONY MAD."

Former Restaurant Keeper is Alleged to Have Married Three Women.

He is an Inmate of an Insane Asylum and is Seeking to Be Released.

HIS WIFE TESTIFIES IN COURT.

She Tells of His Eccentricities—Hayward Was a West Point Cadet and Joined the Confederate Army at the Outbreak of the War.

Colonel William A. Hayward, or Haygood, is "matrimony mad," according to General A. F. Jenks. He was one of the inmates of the Amityville Asylum whose cases are being reviewed by the Supreme Court, in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Hayward was on the witness stand the greater part of yesterday, and her testimony showed that she had a very odd man to deal with. But she is only one of Colonel Hayward's matrimonial prizes, for in his career the eccentric Colonel has married three excellent women.

At the outset Lawyer Darlington, counsel for Hayward, said his wife had abandoned her suit for an annulment of her marriage to him, and would not oppose his release from the asylum.

"That is not the case," said her counsel, Mr. Cardozo; "we are not making bargains."

Dr. Wilsey, superintendent of the asylum, gave a history of Colonel Hayward's career as he had learned it from Mrs. Hayward. He was a West Point cadet in 1861, when he resigned and joined the Confederate Army. He was wounded badly at the second Bull Run battle and did not recover for eighteen months. His first marriage was contracted in 1864. He afterward married other women. It is alleged.

A few years ago, when he kept a restaurant on Broadway, New York, he surprised friends by trying to introduce blondest girls as waitresses. When he lived at No. 405 West One Hundred and Twenty-third street and saw a man pass the house he was wont to accuse Mrs. Hayward of having an engagement with the man. The present Mrs. Hayward became his wife in 1884, but a few years afterward he married a Southern woman, it is said. At the time Colonel Hayward was sent to the Amityville asylum he said: "I'll blow out my brains when the poetry of my life disappears from my make-up."

In answer to a question about the condition of Colonel Hayward he said: "I'll blow out my brains when the poetry of my life disappears from my make-up."

"I only want to show," said Lawyer Darlington, "that Colonel Rogers was discharged from the asylum when his money gave out."

Dr. Wilsey answered, saying that in one day he had written two books. He related his experience with Colonel Hayward and told of his many eccentricities. The hearing will be resumed Tuesday.

HERE'S AN ODD MYSTERY.

Bookkeeper Disappears, and Sends the Safe Combination, Without Directions, to His Employers.

Nicholas Butterworth, bookkeeper for Henry & McGivney, contractors, of Union Hill, N. J., ten days ago started upon a week's vacation. Since that time nothing direct has been heard from him, but his actions have caused considerable comment. Butterworth is about twenty-six years old, single, and resided with his parents at No. 353 Webster avenue, Jersey City. His mother is prostrated through worrying over her son's absence.

Mr. McGivney is in Mexico. Mr. Henry, when seen at his home, Niles avenue, West New York, scouted the idea that Butterworth's absence was intentional or that anything was wrong with his books.

"The firm has always found him trustworthy in every respect," said Mr. Henry, "and I feel that when he returns he will explain everything to our satisfaction." Mr. Henry further said that Butterworth had full charge of the firm's office at Bergenline avenue and Main street, Union Hill.

What puzzled him, however, was the bookkeeper's queer notions since his departure. On August 25 Butterworth's brother, who resides in New York, called at the office. He handed Mr. Henry the combination of the safe, which he said he had received from his brother.

The numbers of the combination were given, but no directions as to how they were to be applied. Mr. Henry said he had an expert come from New York, but that the latter was unable to open the safe. The safe man wanted to drill the lock, but Mr. Henry refused to permit him to do so until Mr. McGivney returned from Mexico. That will be in a few days.

Last Tuesday Mr. Henry says he received a box shipped by Butterworth's handwriting. It contained the keys to the inner compartment of the safe, and a time lock. No note of explanation was contained in the box. At Butterworth's home it was stated that he had left there a week ago last Saturday to go to work, and since then nothing had been heard from him.

SOUTHGATE SEIZES TRUNKS.

This Time He Sues Leffingwell for a Board Bill of $85.

Henry Southgate caused two trunks, the property of H. McG. Leffingwell, of New Haven, Conn., to be seized at the Long Island Railroad Depot yesterday afternoon. It seems he owed Mr. Southgate an $85 board bill. This account would not have been pushed, only that Mr. Southgate, suing the same Mr. Leffingwell for $100,000 damages for alienation of his wife's affections.

It is alleged Leffingwell had been furnished by Southgate with board, lodging and attendance for the last six weeks for the agreed price of $100, of which $75 had been paid.

One evening Mr. Southgate ordered him from his home, but he did not go until the next morning after Mr. Southgate started downtown. Mrs. Southgate went at the same time.

By a writ of habeas corpus Mr. and Mrs. Todd, Mrs. Southgate's parents, have been directed to produce the four-year-old child in the Queens County Court at Long Island City, to-morrow. The hearing will be adjourned until Judge Yanetsan's return on September 15.

DER BY-TSACKLE EDITOR I WANT

He walked into the Journal office yesterday with a big roll of diagrams and an odor of garlic about him. He asked for the bicycle editor and his German understudy was summoned. The visitor unrolled a tremendous chart displaying a wonderful panorama of lines.

"I have here," he explained, "a revolutionizing invention. It is the velocipedic sport a charm gives that is unique. Do you the bicycle ride?"

"Sometimes," he said, "in your velocipedic excursions, have you ever by dogs that bite your heels off been troubled?"
