MR. SINGLER'S NIGHT OFF.

He Mistook Gottfried's Bakery for a Saloon, Got into a Fight and Was Badly Disfigured.

While the four bakers employed by Elias Gottfried, of No. 146 Essex street, were congratulating him upon the arrival of a son and heir about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, trouble was brewing in the baker's household.

During the early evening of the previous night Charles Singler, who lives at No. 93 Pitt street, attended the Dixon-Palmer boxing match, at Madison Square Garden, and followed it up by getting drunk.

MINING EXCHANGE READY.

The Big New Blackboard for Quotations Was Tested Yesterday.

To Be Formally Opened on February 11 with Appropriate Ceremonies and a Banquet.

WESTERN MINING MEN AS GUESTS. The New Exchange to Protect Speculators from the Impositions of "Fake" Mining Concerns—Fifty Stocks Listed.

The quarters of the new Mining Exchange at No. 35 Broadway were completed yesterday, and Secretary Ogden P. Pell made the first test of the big blackboard near the speaker's desk by dashing off a few hurried quotations in chalk.

The exchange is to be opened on February 11, and a special train from Denver will carry a large number of owners of Western mines and representatives of cities within the mining districts to take part in the celebration of the event.

A PLUSH COAT A WITNESS.

Torn by Mrs. Rose Barwood, the Wife of an Actor, When She Attacked Miss Emily Becker.

So many persons crowded into Judge Dury's court room at Long Island City yesterday that barely room was left for the stove. Mrs. Rose Barwood was to be tried for assaulting Miss Emily Becker, who is charged with alienating the affections of Mrs. Barwood's husband, a mute witness to this assault was Miss Becker's new plush coat, torn into pieces.

The wrecked garment was borne into the Judge's presence in the arms of Miss Becker's father, who appeared both as an angry parent and anxious solicitor. Charges of abandonment, too, were pending against Anthony Barwood, the husband, who is a song-and-dance man at the Globe Theatre and was a noose-throver with the "Strangers of Paris" that toured the country some years ago.

The severity of the court was disturbed at the outset by Mrs. Barwood, who, when Miss Becker's name was called, turned to Miss Becker's mother, who was sitting next to her, and said: "I don't like the way things were going on and told Barwood I would not stand it," said the witness. "Then he left home."

and engaged Miss Becker as his house-keeper." Miss Becker denied in detail that she ever had any conversation with Barwood, and said that Mrs. Barwood was jealous without cause. Barwood said his $7 a week salary would not permit him to pay his wife so a week, so he had promised.

The court ruled that Barwood was compelled to pay the money if any way existed to force him to do it. Mrs. Barwood was found guilty of assault, but sentence was suspended.

After this decision Barwood stepped up to Miss Becker. Her father interfered, and pushed her into a room, shouting "Get away from my daughter. You can never speak to her again."
