

HARVARD'S COACH?
Coach Watson Sails for England to Watch Collegians in Training There.

May Pick Up a Thing or Two from Oxford and Cambridge Methods.

FAVORS THE SPRINGFIELD COURSE. The Crimson Eight's Trainer Objects to the Hudson for the Four-Cornered Varsity Race Because of Traffic.

Coach E. C. Watson, of Harvard, advocate of Springfield as the scene of the next great four-cornered varsity rowing contest, sailed for Europe on the steamer Maestri yesterday morning.

Watson, Columbia's representative, as Harvard's position on the subject of the selection of the '96 course, somewhat surprised at the Algonquin Hotel, previous to his departure, Mr. Watson stated that he had no very definite plans to govern his trip abroad other than that his main object was to be present at the annual aquatic contest between Oxford and Cambridge universities, which will be held on the Thames on the 28th of the present month.

"While abroad," he said, "I shall be the guest of Mr. Lehman, the coach of the Oxford crew. My visit will last about a month, and when I return I shall be better able to discuss the methods of training and the different strokes of the English crews. Of course, I shall study them both closely, and note any advantages that either may possess over our own."

When asked if he would not adopt a stroke different to that employed in the Yale race of last year, the veteran trainer smiled, and said: "I have not yet decided upon any new stroke. You know the stroke we use has not varied much for the last twenty years. Perhaps the only change is in the use of the ergometer. It is rather early to make predictions, but, barring the terrible accidents which were our share last year, Harvard should have its experience and noted improvement, a good strong crew."

Harvard's interests in good hands. Harvard and Pennsylvania have all along been opposed to the Poughkeepsie course, which seems to be strongly favored by Cornell and Columbia. A navigable river like the Hudson is no place for such a boat race, and I don't see how any of the colleges care to repeat the experience of last year there. The same accidents are likely to be repeated, despite the old adage that the more you know the more you know. Harvard prefers either Saratoga or Springfield, but I believe that the Springfield course is the better piece of dead water one might ask for. It is plenty wide enough for four crews to row abreast, and there is no chance of a collision or swamping."

"As to the Harvard crew, we have reviewed the number of candidates to eleven, as Milton, who should have been stopped rowing. The men are now rowing with Goodrich as stroke, Melnick as bow, Briggs as coxswain, and the coxswain, and Ames at 3 and Hall at 2."

"Just as soon as I will take the boys from the tank, where they have been training, and put them on the river."

AN EASY WIN FOR HALL. Dinmore Was Heavily Overmatched in Three Games of the Racquet Tournament.

Although the attendance at yesterday's game of the racquet championship tournament, at the New York Racquet and Tennis Club court, was fair, the contest lacked interest because of the vastly superior play of the winner, V. G. Hall, who won in easy and graceful style. Messrs. Hall and N. B. Dinmore, Jr., were the contestants, and the first-named player showed the superior skill at service, placing and volley, had things all his own way, winning each of the three games, and finally securing the championship by a score of 15-8, 15-10 and 15-10, respectively. George Standfield acted as marker and referee.
