HISTORY OF AN ANCIENT PEOPLE.

Story of a Nation Told by Exhibits Collected from All Over the World.

Buda-Pesth, May 2.—Rather bad weather unfortunately marked the opening of the "National Hungarian Millennium Exhibition" here to-day, but did not detract from the enthusiasm of the populace or the brilliancy of the proceedings.

Beautifully Situated. The exhibition is prettily situated on the borders of a large lake, with plenty of space between the structures. It is really composed of two parts—historical and modern.

The town was crowded to-day with distinguished visitors from abroad, there being over 16,000 foreigners, in addition to a small army of some 250 reporters.

PERSONAGES IN CROWD.

At 10:30 this morning all the guests invited to the ceremony took up their appointed places in the exhibition grounds.

PRaise FROM NEW YORKERS.

Chauncey M. Depew, E. B. Roe and George L. Rives Proud of the University.

In response to requests from the Journal several prominent New Yorkers gave the following expressions of opinion on Columbia University and its magnificent site:

A Long Step Forward.

The dedication of the new site of Columbia University to-day was a striking ceremony, and marks a long step forward in the development of that institution.

An Epoch in History.

The dedication of the new site of Columbia not only marks an important step in the progress of the university, but in my judgment it marks an epoch in the history and growth of the city.

Depew is Enthusiastic.

The laying of the cornerstone of the Columbia University to-day is the most significant and interesting event in the interests of higher education in the State of New York, and especially in this city.
