

MISTOOK POLICE FOR THIEVES AND JUMPED.

Annie Winkler Slept Alone on the Fourth Story of the House.

Two Policemen Finding the Back Door Open Entered in Search of Burglars.

BROKE INTO THE WOMAN'S ROOM.

As They Entered She Leaped Through the Window—A Vine-Climb Trellis Saved Her Life, but Her Arm Was Broken by the Fall.

Two zealous policemen, hot in the pursuit of supposed burglars, succeeded in frightening Annie Winkler, a German servant girl, so badly early yesterday morning that she jumped out of a third story window at No. 144 West Ninety-seventh street and nearly killed herself.

Policeman Coyle, of the West One Hundredth Street Station, went down the area in the rear of a row of brownstone houses facing on West Ninety-seventh street at 3:50 a. m., trying the back yard gates of each house as he passed.

When he came to No. 144, which is occupied by the family of Mr. William Stone, a downtown manufacturing jeweler, he was surprised to find the gate open. He entered the little back yard and stole quietly up to the rear basement door. To his surprise he found it also open. He then stole softly back through the gate, around to West Ninety-seventh street, and rapped for reinforcements.

Policeman Farrell, who travels the next beat, heard the signal and came in haste.

Together the two policemen, with drawn revolvers, entered first the yard and then the house. They found the basement dark and empty. Also silent. The parlor floor was deserted, too. The furniture was done up in linen covers and the pictures were draped in netting, for the Stone family is in the country.

ASCENDED WITH MUFFLED STEPS. Stepping as softly as their brogans would permit, Coyle and Farrell ascended the stairs to the second floor. Every door yielded easily to their touch, and each room was found to be unoccupied. On the third floor they came to a door that was locked. A lighted match showed that the key had been turned on the inside. Officer Coyle rapped noisily. A rustling noise from the inside gave notice that his summons had been heard and that the room was occupied.

"Open the door," shouted Coyle. "Open or we will break it in," supplemented Farrell. The rustling noise was repeated, and the door bearing creaked under heavy footsteps.

LIFE MIRACULOUSLY SAVED. Looking out of the window they saw a huddled bundle of white outlined on the green sward. Rushing down, the officers found Annie Winkler, a German servant, thirty-one years of age, clad only in her night dress, stretched upon the ground, bleeding and bleeding from three severe scalp wounds. They attempted to raise her, and found that her right arm was broken. One of the officers called an ambulance, and some of the neighbors who had been awakened by the racket, appeared upon the scene.

The ambulance came from the Manhattan Hospital, and it was found that aside from the broken arm and the scalp wound, the woman had several other injuries, including a fall from her head and shoulders on a vine trained over a bent iron trellis, and slipped from there down a slight declivity to the ground. Otherwise she must have been instantly killed.

At the hospital Miss Winkler said she was alone in the house. When aroused by the officers knocking and calls to open the door, she thought that burglars were after her, and jumped out the window to escape.

TWO LIVES IN JEOPARDY.

Matilda Schwartz Jumped into the River and O'Brien Followed Her.

Matilda Schwartz, twenty years old, a cloak finisher, of No. 200 Madison street, nearly succeeded in drowning herself yesterday by leaping into the East River at the foot of Market street. Patrick O'Brien, an intoxicated man, plunged in after her and was himself almost drowned. Policeman Donovan, of the Madison Street Station, and several citizens, managed to get both of them out of the water. They were removed to Gouverneur Hospital in an ambulance.

The woman refused to tell why she had tried to kill herself. She is a Russian and says she came to this country five years ago. She is not known at the address she gave to the Madison Street police. Her condition is critical.

CRUISE OF NAVAL RESERVES.

The New York, Rhode Island and Connecticut Lads on Warships.

The members of the New York Naval Militia, better known as the Naval Reserves, left yesterday morning on their annual cruise. The training ground this year is at Gardiner's Island, a pretty tract of land near Greenport and Shelter Island.

The New Hampshire, the training ship used by the Naval Reserves, and which is anchored at the foot of East Twenty-eighth street, was gayly decked with bunting in honor of the occasion. Lieutenant-Commander George Edward Kent had charge of the men. He was assisted by Signal Instructor Lieutenant F. B. Anderson.

Precisely at 7:30 o'clock the men, to the number of one hundred, were ready to embark on the United States cruiser Montgomery, which was lying in midstream.

The officers were in service dress, white caps and leggings. Petty officers and seamen wore working suits, white caps and leggings, equipments heavy marching order, without arms and cartridge belts.

The Montgomery will be joined on the cruise by the revenue cutter Dolphin, which will have Assistant Secretary of the Navy McAdoo and a party on board. The naval militia of Rhode Island and Connecticut will also participate in the cruise. The battleship Indiana will convey the Connecticut reserves to the rendezvous, and another vessel will take the Rhode Island reserves. In addition to the naval reserves three hundred blue-jackets from the war vessels will take part in the exercises.

All the coast line will be explored, and the various inlets and bays sounded with the view of making the men familiar with the topography of the locality. The results of the explorations will be forwarded to the War College.

Assistant Secretary McAdoo will remain throughout the encampment. On next Wednesday morning the orders will be given to strike camp, and the men will embark on the war vessels and proceed to their homes.

ONLY A BOY UNDER HER BED.

But a Policeman Was in the Room, Too, and the Pretty Girl Screamed.

At 7:45 a. m. yesterday Detectives Keating and Bevier saw two boys sneaking out of the hallway of No. 1432 First avenue, carrying some washing that had evidently just been taken from a clothes line. The boys dropped the clothes and started to run. Joseph Cohen, aged fourteen, of No. 1450 Second avenue, was caught by Keating, but the other, Joseph Lang, aged fifteen, of No. 334 East Seventeenth street, darted back into the building and up to the roof, with Bevier in hot pursuit.

On the roof he dodged about among the chimneys, and then leaped to the adjoining building. Bevier followed and the boy sprang to the next building and disappeared down a scuttle. Down the scuttle Bevier also went, and was just in time to see the boy run into a room on the top floor, where a pretty young woman was lying on her bed. The detective, in a pair of heels under the bed, and seizing them began to pull, and then the girl awoke and let out a series of blood-curdling yells.

"Madam be quiet, I beg of you. It's only a boy under your bed!" said the detective. "Only a boy?" said the girl. "Yes, only a boy under my bed!" the girl yelled, and a boy under my bed!" the girl yelled. Bevier got the boy out and held him wriggling up in the air by the heels. The situation was so ludicrous that the girl couldn't help laughing, and the officer had no further difficulty in making the necessary explanation.

The boys were arraigned in Yorkville Court later in the afternoon, and both will be sent to reformatories.

NOTED PHYSICIAN EXPIRES.

Dr. Samuel Sexton Passes Away at His Home on West Thirty-first Street.

Dr. Samuel Sexton died at his residence, No. 12 West Thirty-first street, yesterday morning. Dr. Sexton was born in Ohio in 1833 and was graduated from the medical school of the University of Louisville in 1856. He served through the war as assistant surgeon of the Eighth Ohio Volunteers, and on resigning his commission took up the practice of his profession in New York, devoting himself especially to diseases of the eye and ear.

He was a frequent contributor to the medical journals and read papers before societies both in this country and abroad, which attracted much attention. He gained special prominence from his paper on the permanent cure of cataract, read in 1886 before the Society of Otologists, of which he was then vice-president.

In 1877 he was appointed chief surgeon at the West Side Eye and Ear Infirmary and was later a lecturer at the New York Eye and Ear Hospital. He was a member of the University and New York clubs, the Royal London, and numerous medical and surgical societies.

Killed by a Swinging Derrick. James Coffey, a bricklayer, thirty-nine years old, of No. 261 Wayne street, Jersey City, was killed yesterday while working in an excavation at One Hundred and Thirty-ninth street and East avenue, when a swinging derrick over a derrier over the wall. The bucket on the end of the arm struck Coffey on the head, fracturing his skull and knocking him on the scaffold. He died almost instantly.

Mr. Kennedy Not Badly Hurt. It was said yesterday at the Summer home, in Hempstead, L. I., of B. Van Benschoten Kennedy, the well-known New York society man, who was injured while at work yesterday at the Meadowbrook Hunt Club, that the reports concerning the injuries he had received were exaggerated. Dr. Kennedy, who is attending him, says he will be able to leave his house in a few days.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

Watson B. Dickerman has been appointed receiver for the Marshall Basing Milling Company, of No. 87 Broadway, whose mines are in Colorado, by Judge Lawrence, of the Supreme Court, on the application of W. W. Hoastler, a creditor for $11,354. Stockholders to the extent of $140,000 requested the appointment of Mr. Dickerman, who is a resident of New York, and has liabilities of $21,000.

Judgment for $15,175 was entered yesterday against the New York Recorder Company in favor of R. Hoe & Co. for materials and repairs to presses for three years to March 1, 1895. Judgment for $13,329 was entered yesterday against James M. Waterbury and Chas. M. Marshall in favor of the Leather Manufacturers' National Bank.

DEAD MAN'S CRUISE TO BE MADE SAFER.

President Vreeland Says His Engineers Have Hit Upon a Feasible Plan.

Slower Cables to Be Put in at Fourteenth Street and Broadway Some Day.

PUBLIC TO BE HEARD TO-MORROW.

In an interview, President Jeroloman, of the Board of Aldermen, expresses the Hope That Relief Will Come Soon.

At the public hearing to be held in the Aldermanic Council Chamber at 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon the perils incurred by the public at "Dead Man's Cruise" will be fully ventilated. Chief Clerk Ten Eyck, under instructions of Aldermen Robinson, Parker, Goodman and their colleagues of the Railroad Committee, has notified President Vreeland, of the Metropolitan Traction Company, to be present. He also sent notices to the many citizens who have written to the Board of Aldermen complaining of the terrific speed at which the cable cars turn the curves at Fourteenth street and Broadway and at Fifty-third street and Ninth avenue.

President John Jeroloman, of the Aldermanic Board, said, yesterday: "The public has demanded the hearing, and I agree with the Journal, which has been in the forefront of the fight, that some solution of the difficulty should be reached. A day or two ago the Mayor, President Vreeland and myself had a long talk in the Mayor's office. Mr. Vreeland told us that the engineers of his company had finally decided upon a plan they believe will lessen the danger at Fourteenth street. They are now preparing for slower cables at the curve.

"At a point on Broadway just above Fourteenth street they will begin to put down the new curve-regulating cables, and they will run to the east of the present cable around Fourteenth street and again into Broadway, finishing at a point nearly opposite Tiffany's. The reducing wheels will connect with the present cable at the Thirtieth street opening; again in Fourteenth street at the beginning of the second curve. Altogether the slow cables will be about 400 feet long. Cars going north will pick up the slow rope about fifty feet below Fourteenth street, and those coming south will pick it up some twenty feet before reaching the upper curve.

"Mr. Vreeland told the Mayor that, owing to the large number of cars on the cables, the work would necessarily be slow. Mr. Strong asked him if it could be done in a month, and he said it could not.

"After the public hearing, it will be the duty of the Railroad Committee to consider the evidence and then prepare an ordinance to meet the necessities of the case, allowing the Metropolitan Traction Company reasonable time in which to make experiments with the slow cables."

Alderman Benjamin E. Hall, who has already drawn up a present ordinance regulating the speed of cable cars to four miles an hour, said he would endeavor to act at the hearing.

"I think the people are with us in this matter," he said, "and the Railroad Committee will probably find individuals who will have plans worth considering. I know Mayor Strong has taken a deep interest in the solution of the difficulty."

Aldermen John T. Oakley, Nicholas T. Brown and Andrew O'Connell, who are people reasonable and proposed as effective as possible.

MAYOR STRONG'S VACATION

Started in High Spirits for Richfield Springs Yesterday to Be Gone Three Weeks.

Mayor Strong started for Richfield Springs at 10:30 a. m. yesterday on a vacation of three weeks. He will take sulphur baths and drink sulphur water while he is gone. He was in a jolly mood when he reached Grand Central Depot, saying: "How are ye, boys?" to a number of political friends who were there to bid him good-bye.

"I am going to have a good time while I am away," said he. "There's been a good deal of work at the Hall for the last eight or nine months, and I'm glad to get off for a rest."

The Mayor will begin to consider the Parker testimony about the 17th, Ellis and West streets, and the proposed ordinance within the city limits on Labor Day. Mr. Jeroloman was Acting Mayor yesterday. Secretary Hedges handed him a letter, the button, which Mr. Hedges said the Mayor had left for him. The President of the Aldermanic Board wore the button about twenty minutes and then took it off and put it in his pocket.

Hicks Again a Free Man. Being Nearly When Robbery Was Committed Not Enough to Hold Him.

Justice Storer, of the Supreme Court, yesterday discharged from custody George D. Hicks, known also as Cassidy, Hickey and O'Connell, the man Magistrate Simms on July 4 committed for one year in default of $1,000 bail for good behavior for that period.

Hicks was arrested by a Central Office man, because he was to be arrested, and was seen loitering near a man whose watch had just been stolen. It was not proved that Hicks took the watch, but he was merely arrested as a suspicious person under chapter 575 of the laws of 1873, known as the "Professional Criminals' act."

The prisoner's attorney attacked the constitutionality of this measure. Justice Storer did not pass upon that phase of the case, but it decided that the evidence against Hicks was not strong enough to hold him.

VANDERBILT PAYS THE DUTY.

His Books on Forestry Are at Baltimore, but His Protest is Pending.

The decision upon the protest made by Mr. George W. Vanderbilt's secretary against the payment of duty upon books imported by Mr. Vanderbilt for his forestry library at Baltimore, N. C., is still pending. The duty was paid promptly and the books were not detained.

They are now at Mr. Vanderbilt's estate in Western North Carolina, where they form part of what is said to be the most complete forestry library in the world.

As the books are intended for the use of students, and are virtually a public library, Mr. Vanderbilt's secretary, to whom the books were consigned, protested as a matter of principle against the payment of duty.

Killed by a Derrick. James Coffey, of Jersey City, was killed by a derrick yesterday while at work at One Hundred and Thirty-ninth street and East avenue, where a gasometer is in course of erection.

Hanging by Her Apron String. Mary Gardner, twenty-nine years old, attempted suicide at the Oak Street Police Station yesterday by hanging herself with an apron string. She was discovered in time.

GENEROUS GIFTS TO CUBA.

Revenue for the Cause of Independence Great, but the Expense for War Material Also Considerable.

Gonzales de Quesada, secretary of the Cuban Legation at Washington, and Benjamin J. Guerra, treasurer of the local delegation of patriots, left New York yesterday for a tour of the principal cities of the South and West. The purpose of the trip is an inspection of the various clubs which have been organized throughout those sections in aid of the Cuban struggle for independence.

It is estimated that there are now up and down the South and West, in the country, over 500 Cuban clubs in this country. It is through them that the Junta in New York is kept in touch with the various organizations of arms and ammunition. Mr. Quesada and Mr. Guerra will make an appeal at each of the organizations which they visit. The total sum contributed to each month to the cause from all sources is now said to be enormous.

Every Cuban cigar-maker in the country gives 10 per cent of his wages, and in this way $50,000 a week is said to be realized. The aggregate of private contributions reach many thousands a month. In some instances checks for as great a sum as $10,000 have been received at the Junta.

To offset these big receipts there is the never ending expense entailed in the purchase of war munitions. The loss to the Cubans in the failure to land arms on many occasions, and the necessity of being often obliged to throw them overboard to escape capture is roughly estimated at $500,000 within the year. This includes the sinking of the Hawkins and the legal expenses of defending the men arrested for filibustering.

WEYLER INVITES SOURNESS.

Forbids the Shipping of Sugar from Puerto Principe to the United States.

A. Artega, of New York, who has a brother living in Cuba, has received a letter from him saying that Captain-General Weyler has prohibited the shipping of sugar to the United States from Puerto Principe. This order, it is said, was issued in the province ten days ago and caused a great deal of indignation among planters, and especially among those who had expressed sympathy with the government in its fight against the Cubans.

The proclamation was posted up in the larger cities of the province, and in some instances excited the planters and merchants so much that they tore it down with apparent impunity.

A few days after the order was given out the Cubans issued a proclamation to counteract it. They declared that all planters who favored the cause of the patriots would be protected and their crops saved from torch. The Cubans also guaranteed that they would see to the exportation of all sugar.

MORE CUBAN ARMS LANDED.

One Hundred and Sixty Mules Carry the Material from the Coast to the Interior.

News was received at the Cuban Junta, at No. 56 New street, by President Tomas Estrada Palma yesterday, that a large expedition had landed on the northern coast of Cuba, near the city of Camaguey. It was stated that one hundred and sixty mules were required to carry the arms and ammunition from the coast to the interior.

The expedition is supposed to be one which was sent out from Jamaica in the latter part of June. Dr. Jacquin Castillo, who recently landed the steamer "Three Friends" on the island, is now on his way to New York and is expected at the Junta to-morrow.

Betting on the Election.

Isidor Wormser, the well-known Wall street banker and former Democrat, is said to have announced that he will bet any part of $1,000 on the election of McKinley over Bryan, at New York. A letter was received by Wall street broker from a gentleman in St. Louis offering to bet $10,000 against $50,000 that the Democratic candidate is elected.

DEATH FOLLOWS JILTING.

James Sterling, Cold Spring's Wealthy Bachelor, Took His Life Because Miss Wood Favored Another.

The mystery surrounding the drowning of James Sterling, the wealthy bachelor of Cold Spring, whose body was fished out of the Hudson a week ago, has been partly explained. It is now believed that the old man, in a fit of jealousy, because Miss Nellie Wood, a prepossessing young brunette of Cold Spring, accepted the attentions of another man, threw himself into the river. Sterling, who was seventy years old, regarded Miss Wood with affection and wanted her to marry him, which she refused to do.

About three months ago a young carpenter named William King appeared in Cold Spring. He and Miss Wood became very good friends and they were frequently seen in each other's company. King's appearance and his friendliness toward Miss Wood soon attracted Sterling's notice.

It is believed that Sterling was in the village and valued at $10,000. He also left her any cash which may stand to his credit in the bank. To get her inheritance Miss Wood will have to fight, for a sister of Sterling has appeared on the scene and announced her intention of contesting the will.

ADVANCE IN LITHOGRAPHING.

Local Artists Celebrate the Centennial of the Discovery of the Art.

The New York Sub-Association of the International Lithograph Artists and Engravers' Association of the United States celebrated yesterday the centennial of the discovery of lithography by Alois Senefelder in Hotz's Hall, No. 12 St. Mark's place.

The hall was filled with exhibitions loaned by lithographic firms, which showed the process of lithographing from Senefelder's rough experiments to the present process of photo-lithography, including recent experiments on aluminum and zinc.
