HOTEL BELLECLAIRE
NEW YORK
Broadway at 77th St.
Surface cars at door.
Subway at 79th St.
Only a few minutes from the shopping and theatrical districts.

A guest at the HOTEL BELLECLAIRE told me the following story: "My wife and I entertained some friends here the other night and I want to tell you about it."
"These friends have entertained us at several of the big hotels downtown. They usually entertain in pretty lavish style and are accustomed to dine out somewhere almost every night during the season, so they are fairly good judges of both food and service."
"They had never eaten a meal here before. They told me they never enjoyed a dinner more. I did not ask for the information—they volunteered it. They said the service was splendid and the cooking excellent."
"Of course I knew that—I knew they would have a real treat. They had it and said so. Your food and cooking are so uniformly good that you are bound to get more restaurant trade. People generally will find out that you serve fine meals and they will come here in droves after a while."
"People must find out, sooner or later, that we serve good meals, because we are advertising the fact. More people know us now than ever did. The dinner hour brings us many new faces every night. The main Dining Room and the Palm Room are both well filled every night. It looks now as though we will have to convert the big billiard room into another dining room—nothing travels so fast as news about good eating, for our appetites certainly rule us."
