

Colonel Roosevelt addressing the 3,000 New Yorkers who went to his Sagamore Hill home at Oyster Bay on May 27 to tell him that "We want Teddy for our next President." It was a demonstration for Americanism and Preparedness. Two miles of citizens told the ex-President that they approved his stand for "America First." Greeley Photo Service.

The war game at Sheephead Bay, New York. Trenches like the one shown in the photograph would be employed in the defence of New York. It is a replica of a European war trench.

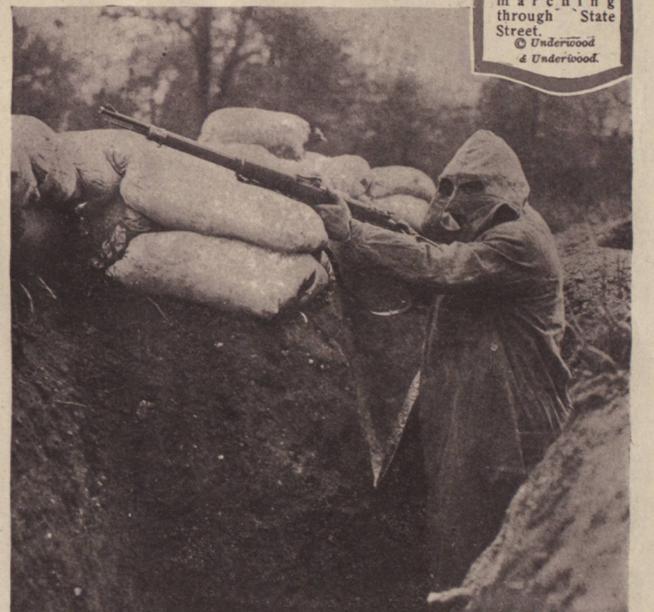

© International News Service.

One hundred thousand citizens marched in Boston's Preparedness Parade. Here is the regiment of Harvard University marching through State Street. © Underwood & Underwood.

The telephone girls of Boston are prepared. They marched in Boston's Preparedness Parade, carrying the Stars and Stripes. The telephone men are drilling one day a week. © Underwood & Underwood.

National guardsman wearing a French steel helmet and gas mask in the war game manoeuvres at Sheephead Bay, New York. He is in a trench constructed during the "defence of New York." © International Film Service.