

Making a new world's record for the high hurdles at Leland Stanford University, California. Extreme right, Earl

Thompson, University of Southern California, who won in 1 min. 44.5 seconds. International Film Service.

John B. Kelly, of Philadelphia, and Tom Rooney, of Brooklyn, first and second in the senior sculls in the Harlem Regatta of May 29. One of the rowers was drowned during these races. © American Press Association.

In the World of Sports

Ziept, owned by John E. Hayes, Jr., winning the first meet of the year of the new 40-footers of the New York Yacht Club. Photo by Edwin Levick.

Mistral, owned by George M. Pynchon, which finished second in the opening of the racing season for the New York Yacht Club's new 40-footers. Photo by Edwin Levick.

Harold Throckmorton, who defeated R. Lindley Murray on May 28 in the Sleepy Hollow (N. Y.) tennis tournament. Photo by Edwin Levick.

Here's a new sport, Hydro-Skiing. It is the invention of an Italian, and is becoming popular in Europe. The movement of the legs, as in walking, keeps a paddle wheel revolving. Medem Photo Service.

Willis Davis, the new California tennis meteor. He defeated Harold Throckmorton, the intercollegiate champion, in the recent Sleepy Hollow (N. Y.) tournament. Photo by Edwin Levick.