

That part of Berlin's male population which is not serving in some department of the army is being constantly trained in the making of bomb proof shelters. The "Place in the Sun" may be under the earth.
International Press Exchange.

WAR'S ARCHITECTURE—The village which haappens to get in the way of British attack and German defence in the Somme sector looks like this after the contending forces have won or lost.
Photo from Paul Thompson.

"And Chaos, Ancestors of Nature, Hold Eternal Anarchy Amidst the Noise of Endless Wars and by Confusion Stand."

When it comes to ruin and devastation man's handwork equals the earthquake's. Between them the German and English guns reduced a village to this.
©Photo from Paul Thompson.

It's better to be a live prisoner than a dead Iron Cross. These captives, taken in the British advance in the Somme sector, are the envy of their comrades left in the trenches.
©Photo from Paul Thompson.

Some of the shells that level humanity and all its works. These are French shells.
©Photo from Paul Thompson.

Official French army photographers taking pictures of shell fire. They also take their lives in their hands and many of them have been killed. Merely the taking of the picture that interests you may mean the loss of a life.
Modern Photo Service.

Samples of the French shells that are obliterating the German trenches in the Somme sector.
Photo from Paul Thompson.