

After a Year's Continuous Boom, "The Boomerang" Is Still Booming at the Belasco.

Alas, not a patient! Just looking for a job. She's engaged as office assistant. (Martha Hedman and Arthur Byron.)

The first patient, and the doctor isn't there. But the new office assistant won't let him get away. (Wallace Eddinger, Martha Hedman and Ida Waterman.)

The Patient and the Microbes. The microbes are Love and Jealousy. The Love Microbe is sitting on the chair arm.

The Jealousy Microbe is the other man.

The doctor closes with his patient, the office assistant having previously subjected him to the verbal pump. (Wallace Eddinger, Martha Hedman, Arthur Byron.)

The doctor diagnoses the case as one of "Jealousy Bugs." His treatment is inoculation with bugs that will eat "Jealousy Bugs."

The Love Microbe, wondering at the patient's recovery, tries again. Unseen by her, the doctor is encouraging his patient.

(Wallace Eddinger and Ruth Shepley)

The doctor instructs the office assistant in the "Love Game." "If you fall in love, say so over and over again, as often as you like but never let the loved one be quite sure you mean it. Swear you're the original devoted slave, but don't always be on hand."

"The Boomerang." The doctor falls in love with his office assistant. She applies his "Love Game" rules, but he wins, leaving a patient in the operating chair.
