

Angier B. Duke, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Angier B. Duke, poses for a photographer for the first time in his young life. Mrs. Duke was Miss Cordelia Biddle, of Philadelphia. © Underwood & Underwood.

Eleven-year-old Gloria Gould, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jay Gould, rehearses her favorite fairy dance on the grounds at Georgian Court, Lakewood. Herbert Kellar.

Yes, it's a girl, unabashed by the camera—Marjorie Gould Drexel, nine-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel, Jr. Mrs. Drexel was Miss Marjorie Gould. Herbert Kellar.

A large portion of the beautiful Scarborough estate of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip gradually is being turned into a farm, under the guiding shovels and hoes of the mistress of the household and her six children. Here are five of the six, working in their own special garden; and to the right, Mrs. Vanderlip in hers. Photos by Gertrude A. Brugman.

Mrs. C. E. Engel and her prize-winner, Palace Suh Meh of Arden, at the first specialty show of the Pekinese Club of America, held on the Elbridge Gerry Snow grounds at Greenwich, Conn. Edwin Levick.

Miss Helen Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Clark of New York, and a few of the coins she collected in a Red Cross benefit recently held at the Hotel Fairmont in San Francisco. Press Illus. Serv.

The 98-cent kitchen uniform which women who pledge their support to Mr. Hoover's food conservation efforts are authorized to wear. © Clinedinst, from U. & U.

Members of the National League for Women's Service have adopted a uniform. This is the summer costume,—a khaki-colored one-piece dress, cape to match, brown straw hat, laced walking boots. Joel Feder.

Roshanara has a scarf of French blue indestructible voile outlined in cerise and silver ribbon. She calls it a sari, and winds it into waists, sashes and headresses, as fancy dictates. © Underwood & Underwood.

