

in Khaki on Their Safe Arrival Overseas

General Pershing on July 4. Above, a view of the conveying fleet.

Pictorial Press.

Note the American sentry and the admiring French on the dock. Four U. S. jackies can be seen hugging one of the transport's big guns.

Kadel & Herbert.

A regiment of our husky "Sammies" at "route step" on their way to camp after landing from their transport at a French port.

Pictorial Press.

An authentic photo of a French aeroplane welcoming an American cruiser on its safe arrival in foreign waters.

Underwood & Underwood.

Loading up a truck at the dock for transport to the first camp in France. In the left foreground is a large box of "smokes" for our boys.

Kadel & Herbert.

French poilus and full to overflowing with our presence.

Kadel & Herbert.

Packing up preparatory to setting foot on French soil. Emergency life rafts are very much in evidence.

Kadel & Herbert.

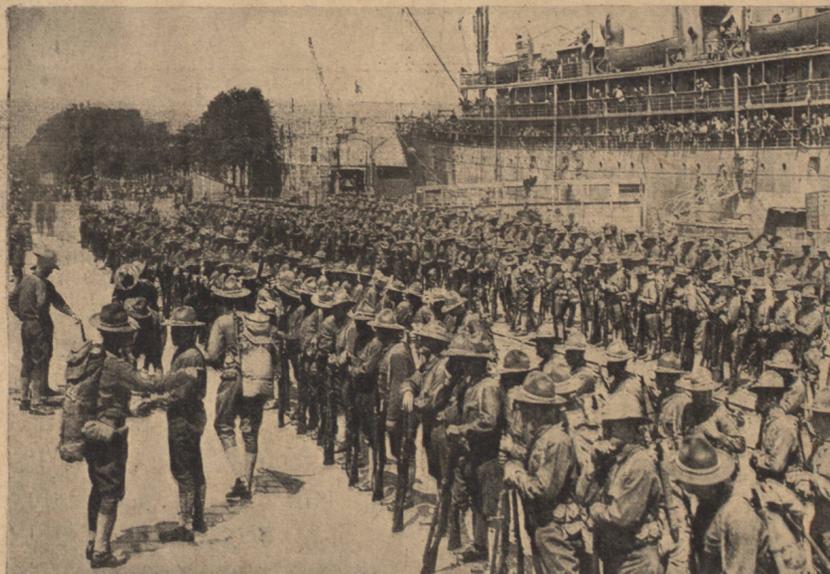

The "column left" through the Place de l'Hotel de Ville.

Press Illus.

A Stars and Stripes color guard of "Sammies" fraternize with their French brothers-in-arms somewhere in Paris.

Press Illus.

Our troops "at ease" on the dock of a French seaport after their dangerous journey overseas. Note that every man carries a complete equipment.

Kadel & Herbert.