

Just to make you dissatisfied with New York weather these wintry days we are publishing these three pictures from sunny Florida.

To the right—A bit of the tropical grandeur one finds on the Cotee River, near Fort Richey.

Below—Somebody's bungalow midst the tropical beauties of the Cotee River above Tarpon Springs.

Above—Here's the way the Belgians transport their supplies along the coast in Flanders. These sturdy dogs can pull remarkably substantial loads over the sandy beaches. Notice the broad, flat wheels of the car, which make for easy going. Underwood.

To the right—Tommies look on in amusement while a British photographer snaps this Hun prisoner in the act of drinking his captor's health from out his steel shrapnel helmet. Underwood.

American soldier boys on Paris leave visit the gondola car of the captured Zeppelin L-49, on exhibition at the Hotel des Invalides. Kodak & Herbert.

To the left—Two German merchant vessels, returning to Germany from Rotterdam through Dutch territorial waters, were attacked by British cruisers and driven ashore. The Dutch cruisers protested and the English ships withdrew. The picture shows the two stranded German ships and in the background the Dutch cruiser Kortinaar. Theo Moussault.
