

British Forces on the Western Front

On the road to the trenches—Tommies rest by the way, while artillery moves up.

Artillery passing an old communication trench.

A short rest just behind the lines.

A cavalry officer negotiates a mined road.

British Red Cross bring in a wounded Frenchman.

Once a German observation post—shelled by British artillery.