

Elizabeth Asquith, daughter of the late Prime Minister, plays one of the leads.

Lady Diana Manners, the famous English beauty, who has given her estate for a hospital, has also consented to its use as a "location" for the picture, and is taking a leading part. She is shown above being told to register "class," and below in the act of doing so, very successfully.

ROYALTY GOES IN FOR THE MOVIES

Noted English society women are taking part in a pretentious picture, called "The Great Love," and the Queen Dowager herself is helping to direct the production.

The Dowager Queen Alexandra has given much of her time and energy to the production.

In this group of society screen stars are Mrs. John Javery, Lady Diana Manners and Lily Elsie.

Miss Bettina Stuart-Wortley does a bit of character work.
