

A PLATTSBURG FOR DOGS
 These canine messengers who carry dispatches from the trenches to headquarters are trained under real battle conditions. Western Newspaper Union.

A practice dash through a cloud of fumes from exploding smoke bombs.

Over the barbed wire entanglements.

Passing through a squad of riflemen who are volleying (with blank cartridges).

They are taught to consider rifle fire as a natural phenomenon and to dash unheeding under the guns.

Major Richardson, of the British army, and his command.
