

With the United War Workers

Do stop and have a bite. We've only just begun. These are French munition workers on the terrace of a Y. W. C. A. Foyer des Allies somewhere in France.

It's a real live theatre, though a good distance from Broadway's white lights. The curtain is about to go up on a "Y" entertainment.

The thicker the shells fly, the faster the doughnuts and pies are put forth by trained Salvation Army women at the front.

Right out of the oven. Guaranteed to melt in your mouth. Some of the wheat we are saving here at home goes into Salvation Army pies. And they are pies!

A Y. M. C. A. sing-song in France. The piano may be a little in need of a tuning. But never mind. It's considered the thing to use your lungs to the full capacity.

"Big" Mackay, Knights of Columbus Secretary, staging a boxing show just back of the firing line. The nurses in the background didn't get reserved seats, but they're just as happy.

The War Camp Community Service is responsible for this gay little Sunday concert. Camp life is being made a thing to remember all one's life. Ask any rookie.

The American Library Association has put thousands of books at the disposal of soldiers, both here and over there.
