

American soldiers in London enjoy a short joy ride before beginning the long joy ride home.
Central News.

A new photograph of Queen Victoria of Spain and her children. The little Crown Prince, Alfonso stands on her left.
Bain News Service.

These are Chinese soldiers, and this picture gives a good idea of their intricate equipment.
Gilman Service.

You would think the feminist movement in Japan ought to be more flourishing than anywhere else. Here we see an army of women coaling a ship at Yokohama.
Press Illustrating Service.

The Duke of Orleans and the Countess of Salvete enjoying a little outing at the Zoological Garden, London.
Underwood & Underwood.

These are great days for New York kiddies, with a real live fleet of warships right in the Hudson and troopships steaming in almost daily. This merry pyramid was snapped aboard the Leviathan.
© Underwood & Underwood.

This is a Mesopotamian water carrier. When the English troops occupied his home town he dropped his own trade and began carrying water exclusively for the soldiers.
British Official, from Gilman Service.