

Alice Brady
 in Owen Davis's New American Play
 "Forever After"
 at
 The Playhouse

Above — Alice Brady as Jenny, the Red Cross nurse, who nurses Ted back to life and love. Act 3. White

Above — Alice Brady off the stage. The $15,000 chinchilla coat (and it's lined with cloth of gold) she wears is a present from her proud daddy. Ira L. Hill

Right — Jenny (Alice Brady) tells Ted (Conrad Nagel) in this modern balcony scene that anybody who would not take a dare would skin a cat. White

Left — From over the garden wall Jack (John Warner) and Nan (Isabel Lamon) have a laugh at the expense of Jenny (Alice Brady) and Ted (Conrad Nagel). White

Frank Hatch, who as Mr. Clayton, Jenny's father, gets the biggest laugh of the play for his very human and delightful characterization. White
