

Aurora Mardigian, survivor of the Armenian massacres, and heroine of the authentic, harrowing and startlingly frank film, "Ravished Armenia," showing this week at the Plaza Hotel, which opens the local drive for New York's share of the $30,000,000 to be raised for Armenian relief.

American firefighters subduing a blaze on the docks at the base port of the A. E. F. at Bordeaux. Headquarters isn't taking any chances with the supplies of our army in France, and has brought over fire-engines of the most efficient types. Western Newspaper Union

Gleaming helmets and shining bayonets—the 369th (New York's old 15th), in triumphal parade up the avenue. Theirs is the finest of records; the entire regiment was awarded the Croix de Guerre. Under fire 191 days, they never lost a prisoner or a foot of ground. (Insert) Colonel "Bill" Hayward, commander of the colored "Hell Fighters." Paul Thompson

"Haus No. 6"—according to the sign, the billet of fifteen horses—with its French family, under the German yoke since 1914. Two sons were killed, one—the younger woman's husband—a prisoner, one crippled for life. All are wearing paper shoes with wooden soles. Who wouldn't be glad to adopt the little girl with dimples? American Photo Service

Above—General Peyton March, Chief of Staff, with the French "Grand Officer of the Legion of Honor" medal, awarded him for his distinguished services to the Allied cause in organizing, equipping and training a great American army. Western Newspaper Union

Left—Introducing the anxious father of the next Liberty Loan, Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury, here to line up New York for the new bond drive. Paul Thompson

Charter member of the Ex-Kings' Club, Manuel of Portugal, gives himself (this time) a pain in the foot. Wounded in a battle of the courts, two litter bearers carry the erstwhile monarch to a first-aid dressing station. Western Newspaper Union

(Right) U. S. S. Cassin, torpedoed in the waters, saved from destruction by Gunner's Mate Ingraham, who saw the keel of the torpedo and threw overboard depth charges. He was killed when the destroyer was torpedoed. A destroyer has been christened in honor of this navy hero. Central News

T. H. Woods making a record ski jump at the Dartmouth Winter Carnival—a difficult feat in perfect form. The winter that is fighting shy of New York is evidently spending the season among the New England hills. Kenneth Bull

British submarine giant, K-Class, 350 feet long, stranded on the English coast. Undamaged, she was refloated the next day. She carries 4-inch guns fore and aft and anti-aircraft guns amidships. Central News

Sergeant Michael Markels, 307th Infantry, cited for gallantry in leading his men through severe shell fire to carry hot meals to the front lines. Underwood & Underwood

Mayor Ole Hansen didn't intend to let Seattle become a Petrograd. Truckloads of U. S. soldiers at the arsenal, ready to back up, as some one called him. "The Better Ole." Underwood & Underwood

Small boys would like to live in Japan, where the flying of gorgeous kites is a popular sport. But can you imagine Young America manœuvring in skirts? Western Newspaper Union
