

Above—One of the "Damn England" banners that was borne aloft by the loyal colleens of the new Republic of Ireland. All the inscriptions flouted English rule and demanded self-determination for the Emerald Isle. Tribune Photo

Above—Spartacides taking possession of the "Vorwaerts" building in Berlin. After six days, during which they published the newspaper, they were dislodged by government troops, who stormed the building with machine guns and grenades. Underwood & Underwood

Above—The spirit of Merry Ireland is exemplified in this gay young Gaelic jester, who led a magnificent Irish wolfhound in the orange, green and white pageant on St. Patrick's Day. Tribune Photo

Above—A friendly enemy—one of the small German urchins who swarm the roadsides to grin at the American boys in the Army of Occupation, hoping for chocolate or the proud dissipation of a cigarette. Paul Thompson

One of the last pictures of Karl Liebknecht, leader of the Spartacan movement in Germany, the instigator of the violent revolutionary outbreak against established law and order, who was shot to death in an attempt to escape from the government soldiers who arrested him. He wears the uniform of a German private, hoping by this method to win the support of the soldiers. Among his papers was found a "black list" of wealthy Germans whom he intended to put to death. Press Illustration

Right—"General" Jacob S. Coxe, leader of the famous Army of the Unemployed which marched upon Washington in 1894, who is now agitating a new constitutional amendment which would give to the people the initiative and referendum. Press Illustration

Above—Secretary Daniels on board the Leviathan before sailing for France on his tour of inspection. The Secretary beams from within his own peculiar style of collar and cravat. Western Newspaper Union

Above—"Hizzoner" turns movie man, grinding pictures of the heroes of the 27th who arrived the other day on the "America." Paul Thompson

Above—A valuable group—these fourteen men represent approximately $400,000,000. Millionaires all of them, one has to be to really enjoy the full benefits of a vacation at Palm Beach. How many of these befeathered gentlemen can you identify? Keystone View

Right—A new photograph of the "grand young man" of France, Premier Clemenceau, in his library. He has fully recovered from the wound received in the recent despicable attempt upon his life by a Paris anarchist. Underwood & Underwood

born of defy-rs.
wood