

Your Fingertips Tell The Truth

Is it safe,—in judging the quality of a piece of silk—to trust to eyesight?

Eyes are sometimes deceiving. True, you can usually tell the difference between a heavy glossy fabric and a thin flimsy one, by just looking at them. But it is the "feel" of the fabric between your fingertips that tells you the real truth about silk.

And it is in the "fingertip test" that McLane's Beaver Silks come out triumphant.

Flawlessly woven, beautifully colored, and with a perfect lustre, these staple, solid-tone silks answer a myriad of needs in the woman's wardrobe.

"Quality" is the McLane Slogan,—"Quality," from the silkworm to the finished product.
