

As quaint as an old-time picture is this pale green taffeta frock with shirred bodice and panniers, caught up with old-fashioned flowers and a fichu of real lace. From Gidding. Geister & Andrews.

FASHIONS that express the joy of victory in their sumptuousness and an underlying note of sorrow in their simplicity combine to make the offerings for the fall of 1919 a striking commentary on the result of the world's great conflict.

Blue duvetyn suit with front of dull red duvetyn embroidered with threads of silk and chenille and bordered with moleskin to match the collar and cuffs. Black hat trimmed with ostrich plumes. Navy blue peachbloom suit trimmed with Australian opossum and brown velvet hat faced with brown kid, which is embroidered in chenille. Suits and hats from Franklin Simon & Co. Geister & Andrews.

This distinguished evening gown is of gold colored satin with tunics and overdraping bodice of lace. The back panel, which continues in a train, is of gold colored velvet. A cloth of gold ribbon ties about the hips. From Boue Soeurs. Geister & Andrews.

Taffeta frock with full skirt embroidered in white and French blue silk and cut in scallops at the bottom. The bodice has the short French sleeve caught in under the arm. From Bergdorf-Goodman. Geister & Andrews.

Kordovan, one of the most popular fabrics of this season, is chosen for this wrap, which attains the new silhouette by being banded about the body with moleskin and tasseled at either side. The collar, too, is of mole. Geister & Andrews.

Over a peach colored satin slip is draped an evening dress of pale pink chiffon embroidered in crystal beads. The black satin antique hat is encircled with pressed ostrich and a scarf of black tulle designed to be draped about the throat. From Bonwit Teller & Co. Geister & Andrews.

Callot evening gown of black velvet. A strip of lace forms half the bodice and drapes one side of the skirt. Black jet beads strung on gold threads swing in chains from the shoulders. Imported by Kurzman. Geister & Andrews.