

Here's the Prince of Wales at revolver target practice on H. M. S. Renown on the way over. The prince is an expert shot and rarely misses an opportunity to practice. Apparently a man's size cigar does not interfere with his shooting eye.

Underwood

The Prince of Good Fellows and His Winning Smile

Kaplan Photo

The Prince of Wales, standing between Mayor Hylan and Mr. Rodman Wanamaker, poses for the photographers after the completion of the City Hall ceremonies which marked the opening of what was probably the busiest week the prince ever experienced.

Press Illustrating

The Prince of Wales on arriving in New York last Tuesday inspected the naval guard of honor drawn up at the Battery, made up of picked sailors from the battleships in the harbor.

Edwin Levick

The Prince of Wales gets in a round or two of good golf down at White Sulphur Springs, where he rested in between Washington and New York festivities. The prince is pretty much of an all-round sportsman—he golfs, rides, motors, swims, shoots, canoes.

Underwood

Introducing H. R. H. Prince Albert, younger brother of New York's popular guest the past week. Prince Albert, together with his brother Prince Henry, has just commenced his college career at Cambridge University. Prince Albert wears the wings of an aviator pilot of the Royal Flying Corps.

W. N. U.

Miss Dorothy "Beauty" Brown, popular Red Cross worker at the Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, who after several attempts finally buttonholed the Prince of Wales and pinned the organization's emblem on him.

International

The prince's houseboat, H. M. S. Renown, at anchor in the Hudson off the Columbia Yacht Club. A sitting room, dining room and bedroom, all modest in their appointments, constitute the royal suite. This magnificent battle-cruiser with the Prince on board glided out to sea yesterday homeward bound for England.

Paul Thompson

Capt. E. W. Springs, of Lancaster, S. C., who was decorated by the Prince of Wales for valor in serving with the Royal Flying Corps. Captain Springs, who is but twenty-three, is an ace with many Hun planes to his credit.

Underwood