

Germany under the terms of the armistice was compelled to destroy or dismantle a large portion of her war materials and equipment. Here are some smiling Heinies engaged with sledge hammers smashing the gun carriage of what was once the pride of a German artillery outfit. Underwood

The French genius for painting and sculpture is evident even in the Parisian street gamins. These kiddies enjoy the first snow of the winter and cleverly make on the Champs Elysées a snow statue of their country's popular idol, Premier Clemeneau. Pepittan

An agile gunner of the 82nd Field Artillery manages to get atop of a pushball during a recent contest at Fort Bliss, Texas. How'll he get down? International

Our new Secretary of Commerce, Joshua Willis Alexander, of Missouri, appointed by President Wilson to fill the vacancy caused by William E. Redfield's resignation. Press Illustrating

A horseback "ring around a rose"—Harvard students learning how to ride in the rough and tumble style of cavalymen under the guidance of army instructors. Underwood

Halina Bruzovna, one of Poland's leading actresses, who has come from Warsaw to New York to learn the English language so that she may star in both the spoken drama and on the screen. She is already under a picture contract here.

Miss Margaret King, whose job is to keep tab on the thousand women representatives in the eighty-nine branches of the Girls' Friendly Society of New York, which organization staged a mammoth historical pageant yesterday for the Episcopal Nation-Wide Campaign at the 71st Regiment Armory.

'Spaghetti' Teste, orator and bootblack, tells Mrs. Oliver Harriman, chairman of the Women's City Christmas Seal Committee, how he organized a Bootblacks' Committee and elected himself chairman. C. Curtis

A "still" from the film "The Heritage of France" taken overseas last summer under the direction of Miss Anne Morgan. All of those participating in the production were French peasants. Gillman

Her hands are her fortune! Miss Dorothy Gray, beauty specialist, who has had her hands insured for $50,000. Her magnetic, soothing fingers employed in skillful massage have brought relief to many a tired business woman. Press Illustrating

This befurred lady is Mary Louise, daughter of England's famous author of the "Sherlock Holmes" stories, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Miss Conan Doyle arrived in New York last week en route to San Francisco, where she will spend the winter. Press Illustrating

Billiards for women the ideal indoor game! Meet Miss Clara K. Howard, of Philadelphia, just out of her "teens," who is one of the game's greatest amateurs. Miss Howard is shown negotiating a difficult massé shot. Ledaer Photo

Miss Edith Strauss, of New York, Attorney General Mitchell Palmer's new director of women's activities in a nation-wide campaign against waste. The women of the country, through their organizations, will search out profiteers and food hoarders. Gillman

This Washington Irving High School lassie, Miss Miriam Ackerle, recently won the prize offered by Mrs. Laurent Oppenheim through the Roosevelt Memorial Association for the best design for a Roosevelt-Americanism post card. International