One Experienced Miner Declares He Can "Wheel" Baggage Through the Pass.

A VENTURE IN OLD MAGAZINES

Shrewd Speculator Expects to Sell Them at $10 Per Copy, as Literature Will Be Scarce.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 15.—No steamer ever carried from a Pacific coast port a larger or more strangely assorted freight of men and their belongings than did the big 3,000-tonner Bristol when she sailed last evening, bound for Skagway. To say every foot of accommodation was occupied is both hackneyed and inadequate. She was full up from the bottom of her lowest freight deck to the promenade deck. Men and horses and outfits were piled six tiers high, and hundreds of tons of cargo had been stowed in where space was found available. There were upward of 500 men aboard with their horses and outfits to last for one or two years. Only those who have outdone large companies can realize what this means. A crowd of thousands thronged on the wharves and approaches all day yesterday mingling with the waiting throng of miners, photographing them and the ship in all conceivable positions and pouring over the vessel to gratify their curiosity. The great bulk of the freight aboard was limited to the necessities of life for the men and their animals. A few articles were attempted to take luxuries with them. It is a grim fight that's before them and they realize it. Only at frequent intervals during the loading of the Bristol did any novelty go on board and much speculation was at once excited.

Packing Old Magazines Along. A large bundle of old magazines claimed consideration for a time, and smiles were frequently indulged in at the expense of the unknown prospector who proposed to gratify his literary taste in the wilderness. Presently the expressions of uncomplimentary opinion were hushed when a grizzled veteran of many a mining rush claimed the package with the casual observation: "I reckon I know what I'm doing. If those magazines are worth $10 apiece before we get to Dawson, those things will sell like any other on the face of the earth." Paper mail is not yet taken to the Klondyke, and no one has taken the trouble to pack in reading matter as yet. Hence the old miner will undoubtedly realize quite a little pile for his thoughtfulness.

Another object of curious attention was a stack of bicycles. The owner explained that he had found that with a little extension from the saddle to the handle bar, he could push 400 pounds of baggage over the pass as easily as he could carry a hundred weight on his back. Of course, for difficult climbing, the bike would have to be abandoned. But it would pay for itself, he said, several times over before that time came. This man has been in the Yukon country before, and has gone in by White Pass with a wheel, so he knows what he's talking about, and he is Newfoundlands and St. Bernards. The dogs were still another attraction at the docks. All kinds were in evidence, but Newfoundland and St. Bernards are preferred. A good specimen of either of these breeds commands immediate sale here at from $75 to $100, while the owners of large and rough-coated animals suitable for northern work have for weeks past taken great care at Victoria to keep their under lock and key at night. Otherwise they would unquestionably have followed some twenty or more that were stolen during the last week of the Klondyke craze.

Of the miners who sailed yesterday quite a number took advantage of the concession just made by the Canadian customs officers to the effect that each American going into the district may take with him, duty free, one hundred pounds of American provisions, including clothing, clothing in use and cooking utensils. Of course, woollens of all kinds are cheaper on this side of the line, hence concession is not as valuable as would at first sight appear.

Mining Regulation Condemned. A public meeting held last night crowded the City Hall to consider the new regulations of the Dominion Government for the administration of the upper Yukon placers, and after a spirited discussion adopted the following:

Resolved, That in the opinion of this meeting the regulations heretofore in force for the control of gold mining in the Yukon district of the northwest territories which require to the payment of a certain yearly alternate claim, is highly objectionable and ought to be annulled because:

1. They will prevent the miners from operating together, as is the custom in all placer mining, and from working their individual claims to the best advantage.

2. They will tend to grave questions as to priority of discovery, out of which very troublesome and expensive disputes, and, in some cases, even bloodshed will undoubtedly arise.

3. The authority, vested by the regulations in the Minister of the Interior, to determine how many claims shall be disposed of renders uncertain what in the interests of the miners should be fixed definitely, as it is likely to be of extreme importance to the miner to claim to know upon what terms he can obtain the adjoining reserved claim.

4. The arbitrary power vested in the Gold Commissioner to decide what constitutes trespass upon a reserved claim, and to impose a penalty therefor, is liable to great abuse and is certain to create friction between the miners themselves, as well as between the officers of the Government and the miners, who are ill advised, especially when they apply to a distant district like the Yukon, the policies of which will, under the most favorable circumstances, be a matter of great difficulty.

It is further resolved that this meeting recommend the Dominion Government to suspend the operation of the regulations of August 21, 1897, as to reserved claims and royalty until some of the ministers in the cabinet have an opportunity to visit the coast and personally acquaint themselves with the conditions existing in a mining community, after which the whole subject of fees, royalties, taxation of miners, and rights of aliens can be dealt with in time to have them apply to the very great majority of those persons who are flocking into the Yukon country during the season.

The very latest information as to the conditions of the routes to the new gold fields is contained in a letter received by Manager Bescombe, of the British Columbia Development Association, to the effect that on August 3 three men rode on horseback from Lake Bennett to Skagway Bay, thirty-four miles, in one day. This shows conclusively that the White Pass was open and in good condition then for those who had horses.

Mounted Police on the Islander. The Islander, which also sailed, had a big crowd, but much of the space on her was taken up by a contingent of mounted police, their horses, dogs and outfits. They realize that they have a Winter's trip before them before they reach Dawson City, and are taking dogs and sleighs.

The horses will be used as far along the trail as possible, and when they are of no more use, they will be killed and used for food for the dogs. A few of the men are going up with the idea of purchasing cheap outfits from men who became discouraged and are turning back, but most of them are well

Agents for New York and Boston Men Going to the Klondyke to Look Over Property.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 15.—Two Alaska-bound steamers, the Humboldt and the Farallon, came into the port to-day from San Francisco. The former is under charter by Seattle parties, Judge William D. Wood, Mayor of this city, being the leader of the expedition. A majority of the passengers on both vessels will ship from Seattle, and both sail from here to-morrow, the Humboldt carrying 225 by the way of St. Michael's and the Farallon about 100 to Dyea and Skagway. Nine-tenths of the Humboldt's passengers come from the extreme East and the central Western States.

New York and Boston are well represented, and several representatives of the capitalists of those two cities, notably John T. Malone, of Tacoma, are among the Humboldt's passengers.

"I'm going in to look over the ground with a view to purchasing some of the best paying properties in the Klondyke district," the American replied to-day when asked the object of his visit to the Klondyke. He is a capitalist, and it is probable that we will make some big investments. Two of our experts are already en route and three more will leave this week via Skagway.

The barrier in the way of customs duties, royalties and other taxes proposed to be collected by the Canadians from the Americans operating on the British Yukon has had no appreciable effect. The rush to Klondyke continues about as before.

TO KLONDYKE BY BALLOON

Company Forming to Make the Trip from Juneau to Dawson City Through the Air.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 15.—Michael Ayers, a real estate man of Oklahoma, Cal., proposes to establish a balloon service between Juneau and Dawson, K. A. Huggon is with him in the scheme. The plan is briefly outlined in a little circular that is being sent out to various gentlemen, whom it is hoped will be interested financially. The circular reads:

Ho for Klondyke! Twenty-four hours from Juneau to Dawson City! For the purpose of establishing aerial navigation between Juneau, Alaska, and Dawson City, British Columbia, by balloon service, the undersigned hereby submits the following sum of money to be paid to K. A. Huggon, No. 435 Ninth Street, Oakland, Cal., as follows: Ten per cent cash; 15 per cent in thirty days; 25 per cent on completion and acceptance of the balloon now being constructed by M. Ayers, No. 435 Ninth Street. Plans may be seen at the office of K. A. Huggon, No. 435 Ninth Street, and will be cheerfully given. The balloon will sail immediately after the sum of $2,000 has been paid in.

The originator of the plan is somewhat afraid that others will seize the idea and adopt it before he can secure the necessary backing to enable him to carry it out. It is intended to overcome the difficulties and dangers of the Chilkoot Pass, and the dangers of a trip over the Alaskan mountains and down the rapids of the Upper Yukon River. Mr. Ayers, who has evolved this plan, is an old balloonist, and says the scheme is practicable.

"It is a little early to discuss the plan in detail," said Mr. Ayers, "and I do not care to go into the minute for business reasons; but it is nevertheless a perfectly feasible plan and one that could be made extremely profitable if it is carried out. It simply involves the use of balloons or a balloon and a surmounting of the difficulties of the mountain passes of that region."

"I do not intend to go from here in a balloon, but only from Juneau or some point that is most available upon the Alaskan coast. The air currents of that section of the globe are solid and steady. These are not affected by the heat as in lower latitudes and are consequently more easily navigated. Professor Andrus had the idea that will carry this plan along."

"It would be necessary to study carefully the prevailing directions of the air currents in that neighborhood and having two known points to work from, Juneau and Dawson City, the exact direction could be easily determined. The trip from Juneau to Dawson City ought to be made in twenty-four hours. It would be better and more rapid than a stage or even a railroad."

KILLED IN A GOLD CRAZE. Schofield Quarrelled with His Wife About Going to the Klondyke, and Dutcher Shot Him to Protect Her.

San Francisco, Aug. 15.—The Klondyke craze has led to a murder in California. Last week George W. Schofield, a farmer near San Jose, was found murdered. His widow, his stepson, Irving Mann, and a hired boy, Daniel Dutcher, were arrested. Irving Mann has told the story of the crime and Dutcher has confirmed it. Mann said:

"I am going to tell you the truth about this, although I'm afraid it will get me into trouble. Dutcher killed him, but he killed him to save mother's life and mine. They had been having trouble during the evening. As he was saying that he would sell the ranch to get money to go to the Klondyke."

"My mother said he could not do that, as he was homesteaded and she had agreed to it. He became angry and made a rush for the shotgun. Dutcher grabbed the rifle and got out of the house. Schofield followed him into the kitchen. My mother ran out on the porch in the excitement. Schofield had the shotgun in his hands. Dutcher saw him and fired at him. He missed, but the window, but it didn't hit him. Dutcher then went to the toolhouse and the trouble quieted down."

"Schofield tried to make it up with mother. He seemed to agree, and we all went to bed. When we got up in the morning the quarrel broke out again. Schofield was chasing my mother with the shotgun. I was out at the barn when I saw this. Dutcher had not got up."

"Mother screamed and ran out to the barn. Dutcher then came out with the rifle and tried to assist her. They were in the corral between the barn and the woodshed when Dutcher fired. My stepfather jumped into the air and fell. When we reached him he was dead."

NO HURRY TO LOOK AT GULDENSUPPE.

When "Identifier" Ring Does Come He Will Awake from His Dream.

NOT TAKEN SERIOUSLY. Associates of the Murdered Man Absolutely Prove Ring is Mistaken.

When Ring, the man from Virginia, arrives in New York—if he ever does—he will identify the remains of William Gulden-suppe as those of some one else, he will find the dozen witnesses who knew Gulden-suppe in life and who identified him in death quite prepared to prove that they are right.

The Murray Hill bath attendants who worked with Gulden-suppe month in and month out and saw him stripped nightly visited the Morgue with Journal men after this paper proved conclusively that he was the missing and the dead man.

Not only that, Frank Schellenberger, superintendent of the bath, said he had on different occasions had such a combination of marks upon the hands, such as Gulden-suppe. Dr. J. S. Crosby recognized his work on the left index finger of the deceased, from which he had taken a felon, the marks being notably peculiar.

The water marks on the feet, the prominent veins in the legs, the moles on the back and the general make of the man were all carefully noted after the identification made complete. These men who knew Gulden-suppe so well are not disposed to look seriously on any attempt to disprove their identification.

Apart from that, the man Edwards, who Ring claims now lies in the New Morgue, was seen alive and well a few days ago, and was identified as Gulden-suppe by Ulysses Grant Benedict, a chaut of Petersburg, Va.

In the meantime Mrs. Naek and Mrs. Thorn are living a somewhat hazy existence in the Tombs. They spent yesterday listening to the regular Sunday services. Mrs. Naek said last night she preferred the sermon of Rev. Dr. Thayer, the Presbyterian minister, who preached the morning, while Thorn was impressed with Rev. Dr. Lindsay, who discoursed the afternoon.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Naek broke in merry laughter, and seemed to be in a peculiarly good humor. One of the prison guards across the corridor remarked her mirth when Mrs. Naek replied:

"I am tired of making the worst of it and I intend from now on to take things as I find them and make the best of it. I have allowed myself to be worried too much and I intend to stop."
