

SONGBIRD'S FOR THEFT.

Lillian Murray Knott Sentenced for Stealing a Cloak.

TERM IS FORTY DAYS.

Once Camille D'Arville's Understudy, Now at Washtub in Workhouse.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 8.—Minnie Murray Knott, whose name in private life is Mrs. Joseph Barnett, and who was formerly Camille D'Arville's understudy in "Madeline, or the Magic Kiss," and later on was with Corlaine and the Duff Opera Companies, is at the workhouse under a forty-day sentence by Judge Kerr.

She was arrested on complaint of a colored woman named Minnie Steele, who accused her of stealing a cloak. Miss Knott declared the woman had lent her the cloak, but was unable to substantiate her story.

Today she worked at the washbasin in the workhouse gang of female convicts. She seemed on the verge of nervous collapse and tears rolled down her cheeks as she told her story.

"I cannot do this work," she said. "If I would let me telegraph to my father I am certain I could get away from this awful place, but it is against the regulations. I understand. They will not let me write or communicate with any one until Saturday. You see I have a father and a mother and I have never done any wrong."

She realized that this ends her career, not only for her father, but for her mother. It is not to live down a disgrace like this. Is it not? I am the companion of common criminals, and according to the verdict of the Court, a criminal myself; but the Court erred. I am quite innocent.

"I was when I was arrested, after recovering from fever, that I wrote to my father and told him I was in trouble. He promptly replied that he had sent me a check for $100. If you have any charity in your mind, please send me a check for $100. I am not so black as my situation here makes me appear."

Miss Knott's parents live at Tacon Heights, Ind. Her father is manager of the Washburn Iron Works at that place, and a man of good standing.

ACTOR ALBAUGH'S FAREWELL.

Veteran of the Stage Will Make His Last Appearance To-night.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 8.—The drop of the curtain to-morrow night at the Lyceum Theatre will signalize the permanent retirement from the stage of E. C. Albaugh, Sr., the veteran actor-manager.

Mr. Albaugh is the lessee of the Lyceum, has occasionally taken a part in the plays produced by the Lyceum Stock Company at the house for several seasons, and has appeared as Shylock. He has been connected with the stage as actor or manager for forty years, and has won a reputation as a dramatic artist and business man with all the prominent stars.

CRANE IN "DAVID HARUM."

Charles Freeman yesterday signed a contract to star W. H. Crane in "David Harum." When Mr. Freeman secured the dramatization of this popular American book he put the manuscript and directing the production into an important star could be secured to play the part of David Harum, and Mr. Crane is the man.

Mr. Freeman had in view for this character ever since the first reading of the book. An effort was made to give the part to the late Edward Noyes Westcott, author of the book.
