

Monster Allied Guns Hurling Their Tons of Metal Into German Lines

THE BRITISH PUSHED FORWARD SO RAPIDLY AFTER THE RETREATING GERMANS BEYOND CAMBRAI THAT THE HUGE GUNS THEY BROUGHT UP WERE SET UP IN THE OPEN WITHOUT SPECIALLY PREPARED POSITIONS SO AS TO GET THEM SOONER INTO ACTION.

(© British Official Photo, from Underwood & Underwood.)

A HOWITZER JUST AFTER FIRING. THE WADS WHICH WERE PACKED BETWEEN THE GUN AND THE CHARGE ARE PLAINLY VISIBLE.

(© Canadian Official Photo, from Western Newspaper Union.)

AN AMERICAN BATTERY OF "155'S" ESTABLISHED IN THE LINES OUR MEN HAD JUST CAPTURED FROM THE GERMANS NEAR SOISSONS, JULY, 1918.

(© Underwood & Underwood.)