SIMPSON, CRAWFORD & SIMPSON.

Our Fall Attractions as Seen by the Press.

Costumes than which Paris can show nothing better, since these are the pick of the Paris stocks, are the features of Simpson, Crawford & Simpson's Autumn display of treasures. Their large store is complete in all of its many departments, but in gowns, millinery and coats it cannot be beaten. These show all the newest fads of the fashion designers, the new colors, the new shapes in hats, the new cuts in skirts and the fancies of the trimming and furnishing that Paris lends in. In silks and dress goods the varieties are without number.—New York Herald

The present generation has seen nothing prettier in the way of head-gear for the ladies than is displayed in the Autumn fashions, and no more beautiful examples of these triumphs of the milliner's art can be imagined than those now to be seen at Simpson, Crawford & Simpson's.—The World.

Among the Fall attractions at Simpson, Crawford & Simpson's are models in carriage and reception gowns from the leading Parisian houses, including such names as Paquin, the Callot Sisters, Doucet and Raunditz; while the wraps bear the taletelling names of Sarah Mayer, Pingat, Rouff and Gustave Beer. The designs in fine French lingerie are exclusive, and the bridal sets are really works of art.—New York Tribune.

The costumes and wraps displayed by Simpson, Crawford & Simpson are in the latest designs, fresh from Paris and Vienna. New and fetching styles in tea gowns are also exhibited, and attracting well-deserved attention.—New York Times.

The costume exhibit at Simpson, Crawford & Simpson's is one of the best to be seen in New York. Visions of artistic beauty, a vista of multi-colored lace and tulle, an orderly profusion of silks and satins, a confusion of feminine exclamations of admiration are the greeting of the visitor to the showrooms of this firm. Unusual efforts have been made to make this year's Fall display the grandest in the history of the house. The result has justified the time, talent and money expended to acquire it. In quality, variety and charm it is unexcelled. Mail and Express.

An exhibition of street and evening costumes, tailor-made gowns and jackets, opera wraps, tea gowns and delicately befrilled separate odd boleros would interest any woman at this season, but the display at Simpson, Crawford & Simpson's is of such surprising beauty as to compel admiration.—Commercial Advertiser.
