THIRTEEN HIS FATAL NUMBER.

A Vienna Youth Could Not Repel His Hereditary Nemesis.

That the number thirteen is fatal, was vividly exemplified by the suicide in Vienna last week of Johann Schueller, says Das Interessante Blatt. The Schueller family consisted of father, mother and eleven children. Old man Schueller had committed suicide long ago, and his wife and children, one after the other, had taken their own lives during the past five years.

FRENCH SHORE QUESTION.

Says Industries Must Not Be Hampered by "More or Less Substantial French Rights."

ST. JOHN'S, N. F.

Nov. 24.—The Colonial Minister to-day received by the English mail dispatches from Joseph Chamberlain, British Secretary of State for the Colonies, intimating that he had been furnished with the preliminary report of the Royal Commissioners, who recently returned from the colony, where they have been investigating the French shore question.

Mr. Chamberlain stated that the condition of affairs represented by the Commissioners was intolerable, and that he was preparing to open negotiations with France for a settlement of the question, with a view to enabling the colony to pursue its industries unhampered by the restrictions created by the existence of more or less substantial French rights.

Mr. Chamberlain bespoke the cordial cooperation of the Colonial Ministry and Legislature in any arrangements which he is promising to expedite the negotiations as much as possible.

TELLS US NOT TO COVET JAMAICA.

Sir Neville Lubbock Says Britain Will Never Part with a Colony.

(Copyright, 1898, by W. R. Hearst.) Special Cable Dispatch

LONDON, Nov. 24.—In an interview with Sir Neville Lubbock, chairman of the West Indies Committee, I asked his opinion as to the annexation of the Island of Jamaica to America.

Sir Neville declared it his opinion that Great Britain would not readily part with any of her possessions, nor would any government dare to make such a proposition to Parliament.

He was reminded of the statement that Edgar, ex-Speaker of the Dominion House of Commons, had commended annexation. He answered:

"I am inclined to look upon that statement as Edgar's personal view. Doubtless it would be of immense advantage to the British West Indies to become a part of the United States, from the point of view of their industries. Jamaica would then send to the United States her sugar free instead of paying a duty of seven pounds a ton.

LAST MAIL FOR ANTARCTIC SHIP.

Southern Cross, with Borchgrevink Party, Sighted Off Tasmania.

OPEN SEA BEFORE THEM.

Probably Will Not Be Spoken Again Unless by Some Chance Whaler.

HOBART TOWN, Tasmania.

Nov. 24.—The British steamer Ruanne, which sailed from London on October 13 for Lyttleton, N. Z., has arrived here and reports that on November 20 she spoke the steam whaler Southern Cross, bearing the Borchgrevink expedition.

The Southern Cross, which is a steam whaler capable of making twelve or thirteen knots, left England in August last with an expedition to explore the Antarctic Continent under the command of Captain Borchgrevink. It was intended that the vessel should direct her course at first to Hobart, Tasmania, at the southeastern extremity of Australia, where a fresh supply of coal would be taken on board.

Cape Adair is in latitude 71.30, below the corner where the coast changes from an easterly to a southerly trend. This point was the ostensible destination of the British expedition which sailed a year ago by way of Rio Janeiro and Cape Horn, and was to reach its base by operations in December or January, which in that hemisphere is the midsummer season.

The explorers have planned to make a variety of magnetic and other observations without proceeding far from camp, but certain members of the party wish to push southward on sledges, for which purpose they have taken seventy or eighty dogs with them. Cape Adair is fully 1,200 miles from the geographical pole.
