

THE JURY TO SEE THE "CONFESSION" TO-DAY.

And Hear Again How the Moores Forced Mahon to Sign It.

THE WOMAN MAY TESTIFY Her Lawyers to Decide This Morning Whether She Will Take the Stand.

OTHER MATCHES WILL FOLLOW.

Fine Plan to Keep the Youngsters Off the Streets and Heartily Indorsed by Their Elders.

The confession written by Fayne Moore and signed by Martin Mahon at the point of a pistol held by William A. E. Moore will occupy the attention of Recorder Goff and the jury in the Court of General Sessions when the trial of Moore is resumed this morning.

Chief of Detectives McClusky will testify that when Moore was at Police Headquarters he admitted having extorted a confession from Mahon. This paper, so Moore said, had been placed in the hands of his lawyer, Edward Durass, as evidence upon which to begin suit for divorce. Moore told Chief McClusky further that he was so drunk on the night he had assaulted Mahon that he did not know what he was doing.

It is likely that Lawyer Durass will be placed on the stand by the prosecution and asked to tell about the "confession" placed in his hands by Moore. He will decline on the ground that his relations with Moore as counsel are privileged. Mrs. Moore's attorneys will decide this morning whether she shall go on the stand.

In this connection B. H. Hill, who came from Atlanta, said yesterday: "If Mrs. Moore is placed on the stand she will tell the truth, no matter who it hurts."

In regard to the charge that silverware stolen from the Waldorf Hotel was found in the trunks of Mrs. Moore, Mr. Hill said: "It is an outrage to make such a charge against Mrs. Moore, and simply shows that the prosecution sees that it is falling to make out its case of blackmail and is casting about for something else. Such a charge may influence the jury. The truth of that silverware matter, as Mrs. Moore states it to me, is this: A clerk at the Waldorf sent her a silver vase containing a bouquet of flowers with the request that she keep the vase with the flowers, and she did so."

"Mrs. Moore is firmly of the belief that she will be acquitted. Upon seeing her husband she is angry for a while, but her husband on the ground of cruel treatment. Mr. Hill declared that the insinuation that Moore and the woman were not husband and wife was false. They were married in this city, he said, three years ago in the presence of Mr. Stinson, then Chief Justice T. J. Simmons, of the Supreme Court of Georgia, her guardian. Moore was first introduced to her in Dublin by the Lord Mayor of that city."

GIRL PRISONER'S NARROW ESCAPE. Released in Trenton from a Charge of Stealing $230, Passed a Detective Bearing a Warrant.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 4.—For three days a young woman had the employes of the Trenton House running at her heels and calling. Then two detectives walked into her apartments, and, putting her under arrest, hustled her off to the police station. She registered as Miss Adele Le Clair, New York City, and was charged with stealing $230 from Joseph Brown, of New York City. Judge Jackson opened his court in the evening, when she was arraigned, but as nothing had been heard from the New York authorities she was set at liberty.

The instant she reached the sidewalk she jumped into a cab and told the driver to rush to the Pennsylvania Railroad station. As she reached the station Detective Barrett, of New York, alighted from a train on the opposite side of the platform with a warrant in his pocket for her arrest. But it was too late. Joseph Brown, the complainant, is a bicycle dealer in New York City, and says that last Monday Miss Le Clair came into his store and made purchases amounting to $25. In making change for her he handed her a roll of bills amounting to $200 on the counter, and this money he claims she took.

TISSOT PICTURES IN XMAS JOURNAL. The Rev. Dr. Peters Amazed at the Beautiful Reproductions of Great Paintings.

When the advance proof of the illustrated section of the New York Journal, containing reproductions of Tissot's great paintings, which will be published on Sunday, December 11, was shown the Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters last evening he exclaimed: "Oh, this is very fine, very pretty." Although in a great hurry he seated himself in his library and looked at the work of the great painter with much care and evident satisfaction. It is a magnificent specimen of a printer's art, which has brought photography to its aid," he said. "This issue of the Journal may be truly called the democracy of art, as the picture of the Life of Our Saviour will be seen by millions of people; the aristocracy of art being the masterpiece set up in galleries and displayed in museums."

"This is but another of the great achievements of the Journal. It will bring Christ to the homes of our people. I have no objection to Sunday papers. While I have no time to read them, I glance over them. My idea is that a section should be as interesting as the Sunday Journal. If I fail to make it so it will be my fault. Although I doubt if I can succeed on the Sunday on which your magnificent issue will be sent out."

DECLINES CALL TO TRINITY, NEWPORT. Dr. Rousemianer was Recommended for the Fashionable Church by Two Bishops.

Newport, Dec. 4.—The Rev. Edmund Rousemianer has declined the call to Trinity Church here. The parishioners include most of the cottage colony. Dr. Rousemianer, who is now at Grace Church, New Bedford, was recommended for the charge here by Bishops Potter and McVickar, but he says he cannot see his way clear to leave his present church. Cornelius Van Decille is a large contributor to Trinity.

WRECK AND DEATH IN FIERCE GALE.

Walleda's Crew Vainly Tries to Rescue Men from a Sinking Schooner.

Every vessel arriving yesterday brought a story of wreck and death in the recent hurricane. Captain Kemp, of the schooner Walleda, from Gonaves, told of a vain attempt to save the crew of a sinking schooner off the Delaware Capes, while the British steamship Angers, herself almost a wreck, brought in the crew of the lost American schooner Harry B. Ritter, which was found demasted and waterlogged 200 miles from Sandy Hook. Reports of other vessels show that derelicts and wreckage strewn the ocean to the southward.

"She was a vessel of 700 tons, I judge," said Captain Kemp, of the Walleda, yesterday, referring to the sinking schooner sighted, "and we saw her about 200 miles to the eastward of the Capes. She had three masts and was flying a distress signal. The wind was yet blowing strong, but we ran down to her, hove to under her lee and hailed. We could see light on her deck. They shouted that their vessel was sinking fast and begged to be taken off. Our boats were smashed and we told them to come to us in their own boats."

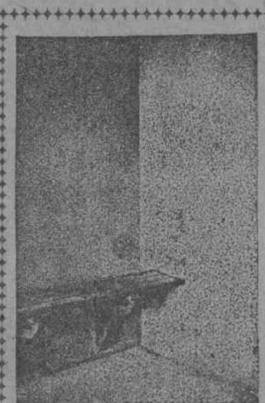

Crew Probably Lost. "Meantime, we were drifting out of reach, but by tacking managed to work back to our original position. We hailed again, but this time received no reply. Night had fallen and we could not see the deck of the wreck. "Away to windward another schooner had hove to, evidently on the same errand as ourselves. We both stood by the distressed vessel until daylight. Then the Walleda ran closer and we hailed again. But the wrecking party had departed. The boats were gone, and it is likely the crew lashed themselves to the after deckhouse, and their hope was centered in the lifeboat swinging at the after end of this house. Two cabins and a turpentine wash into the deckhouse. The crew labored at the pumps all that day and night, but on the morning of the 27th the vessel was full of water and her decks awash. She was hove to and the main and mizzen masts cut down that afternoon to make her ride easier. All the provisions from the store room had been washed overboard."

gers' cabin skylights, wrecked the cabin and gutted the store room. Her two lifeboats were crushed, the pilot house broken to splinters, the wheel smashed, the engine and wire windlass wrecked, and large sections of the rails and stanchions torn loose. The water worked below through the wrecked cabin, and the steamship listed thirty degrees to port when she reached here yesterday. The crew had to broach the floor cargo for food, living on dough cakes for three days. Two hundred tons of flour were jetisoned to lighten the vessel. The American brigantine Carib arrived yesterday from Truxillo, three men short. Two had deserted in Truxillo, and the chief mate, Robert Quiry, was washed overboard and lost on November 27, when the Carib was scudding before the storm under bare poles at ten knots an hour. No effort could be made to save the mate. On the same day the Carib sighted a white, three-masted schooner abandoned in latitude 32.0, longitude 70.30. The vessel was ready to sink and there was no evidence of life aboard. The steamship Delacarla, from Brazilian ports, sighted a burning schooner last Friday, in latitude 37.40 and longitude 70.52. A large white painted steamship with yellow funnels—supposed to be a North German liner—was standing by.

Tired Men

Men wear out their lives quickly nowadays. Their brains and bodies are overworked, and then come sleeplessness, nervousness, dyspepsia and general debility. The system gives out. These troubles, if neglected, hasten the end. Strength and health will come back with the aid of

TYPHOID RAGES; MILK THE CAUSE.

I have attended twenty-five cases of typhoid fever in this neighborhood within the past month. Three of my patients have died, two more are apt to die. The cases are scattered along Jerome, Bernal, Ogden and Nelson avenues. The epidemic has been traced to milk from farms at Boston Corners; milk that was adulterated with water.—DR. JAMES A. PERGAMON, of High Bridge, to the Journal.

There is an epidemic of typhoid fever at High Bridge. It has been in progress for a month, but the news became public only yesterday. Dr. James A. Pergamon, a prominent physician in that part of town, has twenty-five cases alone of the dread disease. Other physicians have similar cases.

The first case reported was in the family of Mr. McVey, of Nelson avenue and One Hundred and Sixty-fifth street. His wife and child were taken ill with the disease. Thence it spread to other families. It affected those who were supplied with milk from farms in Boston Corners. Mrs. Briggs, of No. 170 Sedgwick avenue, Morris Heights, was taken ill and died. Then a family named Rockwell was attacked. The mother and two children were victims. Mrs. Rockwell and one of the children died. The other child is still ill.

Some cases were reported from various other sections of the district. Among those who were taken ill were a milk dealer named Seabold, and his three children, whose home is in Walton avenue, Mott's Heights.

The attention of the Health Department was called to the epidemic, and Dr. Monahan, sanitary inspector, was sent up to investigate the matter. He found that adulterated milk was responsible for the epidemic. He traced the milk to farms along the Harlem Railroad at Boston Corners. He is now making a thorough investigation to get at the facts. The typhoid germs are believed to have been in the water with which the milk was adulterated.

REJECTED, HE TRIED MURDER.

"Since you wont marry me, you shall die with me." Having said this, Louis Hutzler, a baker, forty years old, who boarded in the house of Mrs. Bertha Dietrich, a widow, sixty-eight years old, at No. 43 Bartlett street, Williamsburg, cut her throat with a razor. Then he cut his own.

Mrs. Dietrich's husband died in September last, leaving her two houses. After Dietrich's death Hutzler often spoke of marriage to Mrs. Dietrich. The widow discouraged his attentions; she was satisfied it was the money that Hutzler was after.

Saturday night, after another refusal from the widow, Hutzler went to his room in a depressed frame of mind. Yesterday he was seen shortly after noon by Miss Susie Kraemer, who lives opposite, running to the widow's room. He seemed to have been drinking. Mrs. Dietrich's two dogs were heard barking.

Presently the widow was seen to stagger out of the house and fall on the sidewalk. Miss Kraemer and her mother ran across the street and found the old woman with her throat cut. They carried her into the basement, where they found Hutzler gashing his throat. He was sitting on a chair, but had strength enough left to attempt an attack on the two women. The dogs sprang at him and tore his clothes. He fell.

Neighbors summoned Policemen McLaughlin and Landman. Surgeon Hancock of the Eastern District Hospital, found Mrs. Dietrich insensible, and probably fatally wounded. The baker was severely able to speak. The woman revived and told the story of the attack. She said the dogs had sprung to her assistance, but Hutzler kicked them away.

Hutzler said he regretted that he had not succeeded in killing both the widow and himself. Surgeon Hancock took the man to St. John's Hospital, where his condition was last night pronounced critical.

PRIEST DENOUNCES SLEIGH RIDERS.

Rev. Maurice P. O'Connor, pastor of the Church of the Holy Cross, Harrison, N. J., created consternation among his flock at all the masses yesterday by denouncing a sleigh ride party which went out last Monday night from the residence of one of his parishioners on Seventh street.

Father O'Connor said he had learned that the sleighers went to a hotel at Rutherford where, after having a supper, they danced until early morning. Such affairs, he declared, were in direct violation of the rules of the church and could not be tolerated.

Father O'Connor held in his hand a newspaper clipping which gave the names of some of the party. He added:

"I now call on all those whose names are mentioned to immediately resign from every society in the church with which they are connected. Some of the persons named are members of the Junior Choir, the Junior Holy Name Society and the Children of Mercy. They are here now and hear what I have to say."

Father O'Connor further stated that a performance which the Junior Holy Name Society was to give for the benefit of the church fund in a Harrison hall would not receive his sanction.

CHILD TOOK OPIUM PILLS FOR CANDY.

While his parents were making preparations yesterday to move from their flat on the top floor of No. 53 East One Hundredth street, six-year-old Willie Griffin got hold of a box of pills compounded largely of opium, and, thinking they were candy, ate some. Half an hour later the child was found snoring loudly in his little chair.

All her efforts to awaken the child failing, the mother called Dr. Sandgren, of No. 1480 Madison avenue. He at once pronounced it opium poisoning. Then it was that the mother remembered the pills. They had been prescribed for her by Dr. Sandgren.

Despite the efforts of two physicians the child died an hour later.

Old Book Store Will Not Move. The sale of the building at No. 81 Chambers street will make no difference to the Messrs. Legend, whose old book store occupies the ground floor. The firm has a lease with several years to run, and the report that the book store would give place soon to a restaurant is unfounded.

Clarke Was Not the Superintendent. Bernard Clarke, who was charged in the Harlem Court on Saturday with larceny, was not, as inadvertently stated, superintendent of the Almshouse under Mayor Strong, but merely an employe in that institution.

Illustration of a man in a hat and coat, possibly a farmer or laborer, standing next to a large wooden wheel or cart. Text: A truck farmer, living in Owen, Indiana, describes an afflicted condition with which almost every one will sympathize. "I want to thank you," he writes, "for the good that Ripans Tablets have done me. I had been all run down for a year and could not build up on account of imperfect digestion and assimilation. I had tried various remedies without relief until I was thoroughly discouraged. My father, who had used the Tablets with good results, recommended them to me, but I had so little faith in anything that he had to insist several times before I would try them. Finally I got a package and my improvement was both rapid and sure from the first. I shall keep them on hand hereafter for emergencies, and shall take pleasure in recommending their use to any one who may be similarly afflicted."

WANTED.—A case of bad health that R-I-P-A-N-S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the new R-I-P-A-N-S on the package and accept no substitute. R-I-P-A-N-S, 10 for 5 cents or twelve packages for 45 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Rheum Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.
