

Seth Low Securely Peace Concession from Boss Steamfitters.

TO GIVE DECISION TO-DAY. Delegates See in the Peace Offering an Ingenious Plan to Forestall Them.

STATE ARBITRATORS ARE ANGRY They Feel That They Have Been Sadly Slighted by the Calling in of Bishop Potter and Mr. Low.

The Board of Walking Delegates scored a point yesterday in the fight with the Master Steamfitters, and the complexion of the struggle was, for the moment, changed.

Hitherto the Delegates' Board has, to all intents and purposes, been on the defensive, and the massing of forces on the part of building trades' bosses indicated a determination to overthrow the Board by a swift, united and relentless onslaught.

When the sun went down last night the shoe was practically on the other foot, and the delegates were rejoicing that the Master Steamfitters had made overtures for a settlement.

Didn't Believe War Talk. The Board has declared all along that the walkie talk of a general lockout on the part of the Building Trades' Association was a "bluff" pure and simple.

It was all brought about by the efforts of President Low to make easy his own work of arbitration. For days, before he was chosen as umpire in the dispute, he busied himself trying to get promises of concession from both sides.

On Tuesday the President will confer with Judge William R. Day, who is to go to Cuba as special commissioner to investigate the Ruiz case.

When the taking of a few days' vacation was suggested by Secretary Porter the President was conscientiously opposed to what he termed "dodging" the party workers who have been making life here denser since March 4th.

It has been suggested that the President contemplates a trip in the Dolphin. The criticism which was aroused when President Cleveland made use of Government vessels for his private excursions has prejudiced President McKinley against following the example of his predecessor.

The President has within the last two weeks on several occasions gone for an afternoon horseback ride along the country roads adjacent to this city.

It is the custom of the President to drive in his carriage to some quiet spot in the outskirts of the city, where the cavalry horses are in waiting, and accompanied by two non-commissioned officers of the Sixth Cavalry as orderlies, and by General Miles and Lieutenant Michler, his aide, he spends at least an hour in the saddle.

The engagement is formally announced of Miss Hallie Tiedemann, the pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Tiedemann, of No. 32 West Seventy-sixth street, to Carl Schurz, son of the well-known Statesman of that name.

Home Is Put Up for Association Talks Intelligently on Newspapers.

Edwin Gould's name has been proposed for associate membership in the New York Press Club by John T. Nagle, Joseph Howard, Jr., and Charles T. Smith, and will be acted upon at the next regular meeting.

"I have many times been selected to become an associate member of the New York Press Club, but as it was out of my line, and as I had not seen the possible benefits to me from such connection, had declined, but I have been persuaded to connect my self in this friendly way with the club, and expect to reap all the rewards of such pleasant association."

"Well," said Mr. Gould, "I think they are great institutions. They are great agencies for good and, I may say, evil, but the ideal newspaper is a great and beneficent factor for good, and it acts as a medium to convey and reflect public sentiment."

"I think the papers should be strictly impersonal, and look to the general good of all those who read them and who are influenced by them."

"I have found newspaper men—those I have met—as a rule, bright, wholesome and broad-minded, but when there is one who has prostituted his talents to evil or sinister purposes, he is a bad citizen, and by reason of the agencies at his command, liable to do great harm."

"MYSTERIOUS DARK MAN." He Adds to the Complications of the Brady Will Case and May Get Witness Flynn in Trouble.

The contest of the will of James Brady, the builder, who died in January, 1896, was continued before Justice Fitzgerald yesterday.

At the end of yesterday's session, Thomas Flynn, a witness, found himself in trouble. At a former hearing Flynn testified he had in his possession another will of Brady's that divided the estate between son and daughter, and that it was an original, not a copy.

At his former examination Flynn swore that when Brady gave him the will, for safe keeping he hid it under a rug. Yesterday he said he kept it in a box.

"I wish you to be in court every day until this case ends," he said, sternly. James McManus, a young man, added to the puzzling complications in the case. He said he knew Brady slightly. One day he went into a saloon at Fifth street and Lexington avenue. Brady was there and asked him to sign a paper. McManus thought it was a contract, and signed.

Patrick Flannigan Didn't See the Engine That Struck Him.

AT 89TH STREET STATION. Engineer Doty, Who Was at the Throttle, Made His Escape After Being Arrested.

Patrick Flannigan, the ticket agent of the uptown station of the Third Avenue elevated railroad line at Eighty-ninth street, was killed by a train at that point last night.

Flannigan's home was in Woodhaven. He was on duty at night, and took his post at 7 o'clock. He was five minutes into last night when his train from the annexed district slowed up at the downtown station at Eighty-ninth street.

Flannigan's body was taken to the East Eighty-ninth Street Station. He was unmarried and had worked at the Eighty-ninth street elevated station three months as telegraph operator and ticket agent.
