

THE GIRL OF TO-DAY As She Is Shown in Pictures Selected by Noted Artists

The New York Times Asked Its Readers to Submit Photographs of Young Women Whom They Considered Typical of the American Girl. Entries by Hundreds Were Received Before the Contest Closed on November 1. The Judges Found Too Many Attractive Photographs to Limit Their Selections to Twenty-nine, as Originally Planned.

Judges in the Contest Were Seven Well Known American Artists: James Montgomery Flagg, C. Allan Gilbert, Clarence F. Underwood, Philip Boileau, Penrhyn Stanlaws, W. L. Jacobs, and Hamilton King. Twenty-nine of Their Ninety Selections Were Reproduced Last Sunday. The Other Sixty-one Are in This Rotogravure Section.

The Girl of To-day Section of the Christmas Number Last Week Was the First Eight-Page Newspaper Section Issued in America by the German Rotogravure Process, the Newest and Most Wonderful Method of Illustration, Which Will Soon Be Used for All the Regular Sunday Pictorial Sections of The New York Times.

MISS ISABELLE CARDEN,
Dallas, Texas.
(Photo by Brandenburg.)

MISS E. L. ADAMS,
3 East 76th Street, New York City.
(Photo by Brandenburg.)

MISS ELSIE DRYPOLCHER,
437 West 57th Street, New York City.
(Photo by W. Burden Stage.)

MISS MABEL ARNOLD,
Vanderbilt Hotel, New York City.
(Photo by Campbell Studios.)

MISS FRANCES COOKE,
123 Chiswick Road,
Boston, Mass.