SQUARE HOUSE

An Achievement in Sectional Construction.

Bossert Redibill Homes

"Not Even a Nail to Buy."

Instead of hand-cut and nailed-together boards, machine-cut sections are used in building the Redibill Home. 2 heavy walls of lumber, separated by a "4" felt paper-lined Air chamber, make up each section. These are mortised and tenoned, fitted into one another, and then bolted together.

This makes possible a construction that cannot be equaled by any other method for inherent strength, durability and economy.

Write for newly enlarged catalog giving construction details, models and prices.
