

THE NEW RUSSIAN COUNCIL OF WORKMEN'S AND SOLDIERS' DELEGATES, WHICH A WEEK AGO ADOPTED A VOTE OF CONFIDENCE IN THE RUSSIAN PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT BY A MAJORITY OF 35 IN A TOTAL VOTE OF 2,500, HOLDING THEIR FIRST MEETING IN THE CHAMBER OF THE DUMA.

The Frame from which the Portrait of the Deposed Czar Nicholas II. Has Been Removed Can Be Seen Back of the President's Dais. (Photo © by Underwood & Underwood.)

MME. CATHERINE BRESHKOVSKAYA, Known Throughout the World as the "Grandmother of the Revolution," Visiting the Graves of Those Who Fell in the Revolution, Immediately on Her Arrival in Petrograd from Siberia, Where She Had Spent in Exile Forty-four of the Seventy-three Years of Her Life. (Photo © International Film Service.)

PRINCE GEORGES E. LVOFF (x) AND PAUL N. MILUKOFF (xx), RESPECTIVELY PREMIER AND FOREIGN SECRETARY IN THE RUSSIAN PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT, BESIDE ONE OF THE HUGE GRAVES IN PETROGRAD OF THE REVOLUTIONISTS SLAIN IN THE CONFLICT WITH SUPPORTERS OF THE OLD REGIME. (Photo © International Film Service.)

"THE CHAINS ARE BROKEN." Young Girls Bearing in the Streets of Petrograd Sections of Chains from the Destroyed Prisons of the Romanoff Regime.

MICHAEL V. RODZIANKO, PRESIDENT OF THE DUMA, AND PROF. URAVITCH, THE NEW PETROGRAD CHIEF OF POLICE, VIEWING THE FUNERAL PROCESSION OF THE SLAIN REVOLUTIONISTS.

SOLDIERS AND CIVILIANS BEARING TO THEIR GRAVES THOSE SUPPORTERS OF THE REVOLUTION KILLED IN THE PETROGRAD UPRISINGS. The Burial Place Is Overlooked by the British Embassy, and it Is Announced from Petrograd That the Proposed New Houses of Parliament Will Probably Be Erected Over the Site. (Photos © International Film Service.)

FRENCH RED CROSS ATTENDANT LIFTING UP A GERMAN SOLDIER TO GIVE HIM A CUP OF WATER. (Photo from Pictorial Press.)