THE AQUASCUTUM Coat comes by its reputation honestly. A coat which can withstand the rigors of an English climate can stand anything. That is why the Aquascutum is the best-known overcoat in the world. It is worn everywhere, on Fleet Street and in Flanders, on Piccadilly and the Plaza, and wherever men want the comfort of warmth without the discomfort of weight. In addition, it has style. Not merely the style of conformance to a mode, but the style which is typical of the people who make them, and who excel in making swagger topcoats simply because they live in a region of perennially topcoat weather.
