

AMERICAN SOLDIERS CAMOUFLAGING A NEW OFFICE BUILDING UNDER CONSTRUCTION AT GENERAL PERSHING'S HEADQUARTERS.

A VILLAGE OF AMERICAN BOMB-PROOF CAVES BUILT ON THE SIDE OF A HILL ON THE AMERICAN FRONT IN FRANCE AS PROTECTION AGAINST GAS AND SHELL FIRE.

With America's Fighting
"Devil Dogs"
on the Marne
Front

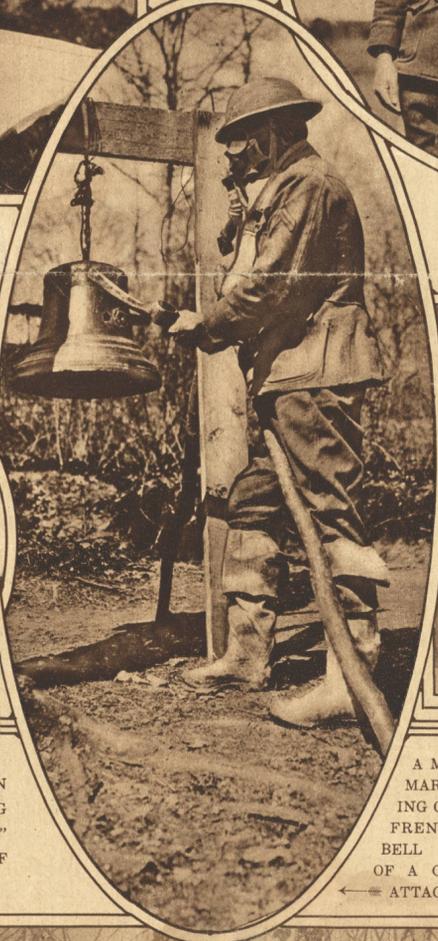

BRIGADIER GENERAL DOYEN, Commanding American Marines in France, Studying German Positions with the Aid of the Latest Map.

MAJOR THEODORE ROOSEVELT, JR., Since Wounded and Gassed, and Cited for Bravery in Action, with Lieutenant Christian R. Holmes and Sergeant James A. Murphy, on Whom He Had Just Pinned the French War Cross for Gallantry in a Raid.

AMERICAN MARINES DRINKING WITH FRENCH "NON-COMS," THEIR GUESTS, TO THE SUCCESS OF THEIR JOINT CAUSE.

AMERICAN MARINE SOUNDING ON A FORMER FRENCH CHURCH BELL THE ALARM OF A GERMAN GAS ATTACK.

AMERICAN MARINE, AND A FRENCH "NON-COM" OF THE BICYCLE CORPS, WRITING HOME LETTERS BY CANDLE-LIGHT WITH A WINE BOTTLE FOR A CANDLE STICK.

(Photos © Committee on Public Information.)

CAPTAIN T. L. HUSTON, E. O. R. C., Part Owner of the New York Yankees, Who Has Given Up His American Interests to Build Railroads for the American Government Close Behind the Firing Lines in France.

AMERICAN MARINE SENTRY WITH MASK IN PLACE DEFYING A GERMAN GAS CLOUD. He, with Everything About Him, Is Enveloped in the Cloud, the Trucks Appearing Dimly Though Only a Few Feet Away.

SERGEANT FRANK BAYLIES, Most Successful American Birdman, with 11 Official and 5 Unofficial German Machines to His Credit, "Missing" Since June 17, When Forced to Land in German Territory. This Photograph Showing His War Cross with Many Palms and Other Decorations Is, So Far as Known, the Last Taken of Him. (©Internal Film Service.)